You Live on Hot Glass. Wanted, Another Edison. $164,000,000 Profit. Big Business Reaches Out.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PROF. DALY, who teaches geology at Harvard, says the earth's core, reaching from the center half way to the surface, is red-hot glass. A pressure of 50,000,000 pounds to the square inch causes intense heat of 50,000 degrees centigrade.

ON that core of liquid, molten glass, the continents rest and slide.

The shore of Africa once touched the south of South America, as you probably know.

The outer crust of the earth is of stone about 30 miles deep, and other layers, below that one, protect us from the heat.

FURTHERMORE, you are told that the moon is the result of a catastrophe. It is a piece of the earth that rolled away long ago before the earth was solid, now held in its place by the earth's power of gravitation.

It was a fortunate accident for us, for, without the moon to shift the tides, the oceans would be virtually stagnant, and human life impossible.

GOVERNORS of various states are co-operating with Thomas A. Edison, seeking, among boys of today, "Edison's successor." That boy, when he is found, will find himself.

To develop Edison, one among hundreds of millions, many ingredients, including poverty and necessity, were necessary.

The next Edison is somewhere, on a farm, or in the city.

There is no way to identify him now.

WALL STREET has grown calmer, with interest at 15 per cent. But bright, cheerful spots stand out here and there. Those that bought stock in "United Aircraft and Transport," originally the Boeing Company, put together by Mr. Mitchell's National City Bank, have made a profit of $164,000,000, and of that amount $50,000,000 since last Saturday.

THE lamb's difficulty is in knowing which stocks to "pick."

The wise course is not to sell anything short. You never can be sure. Some that sold United Aircraft short were busy yesterday trying to buy back stock that they sold and did not have.

ON his recent visit to Germany, Alfred T. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, purchased "Opel," biggest automobile concern in Germany.

Now the Opel works places an order for $1,750,000 worth of tools in the United States.

Big business has become international. American business men are reaching out, buying automobile works in Germany and Italy, building plants in Britain and Holland, starting flying in China.

NEW YORK'S transactions yesterday in the usury market were headed as follows:

"Money Offering Exceeds All Needs; Rate Drops to 10 Per Cent."

The lenders have a wonderfully good system, as the salesman said when he was kicked down six flights of steps, a fresh man doing the kicking at the head of each flight.

HARKERS ISLAND, off the coast of South Carolina, has 1,200 inhabitants on its 5,000 acres of land. It has no public officials, no police, sheriff or doctor. The 1,200, all fishermen, live peaceably.

A COMMUNITY without police or laws is hard for us to imagine. Yet every good family is such a community. Justice and kindness take the place of the police and laws. The time is coming, and is less than a million years away, when there will be no need of laws or police on this earth. Science will provide enough for all. Emulation will replace competition.

Even now nobody steals water from another man's well. There is plenty of water.

COL. LINDBERGH tells Congressmen that within a few years there will be "safe flying" between here and Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, and, of course, absolutely safe flying all over the United States, from ocean to ocean, from Canada to Mexico.

COL. LINDBERGH says that every big city will need more than one airport.

The postoffice, which continues its admirable aviation developments, has shortened air mail time from the Atlantic to the Pacific by one night.

MUSSOLINI, anxious to have more Italians on earth, lowers the legal age of marriage, for boys from 18 to 16, and for girls from 15 to 14.

That may increase numbers, but it will not increase quality.

TED JOYCE JAILED IN GIRL CASE

Teddy Joyce, master of ceremonies at the Penn Theater, was arrested today at the theater on a warrant charging him with contributing to the delinquency of a minor child.

The warrant was issued in Morals Court today at the conclusion of testimony of 15-year-old Margaret "Peggy" Burns, of 1425 Page street.

Joyce, through his father and manager, J. Joyce, flatly denied knowing the girl and said the charge was a "frameup."

PEGGY TELLS OF "LINE"

An information against Joyce was made before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg by the girl's father, Frank Burns, at the instance of Police Inspector James N. Hoey.

When giving his description to the Bertillion operators, Joyce said his real name was Le Grande Cuthbertson, and that he was 23.

"He told me I danced divinely and that I was just the right size for a pony in the chorus," Peggy testified Joyce told her at a dance some time ago.

"PROMISED BALTIMORE TRIP"

"We were to have gone to Baltimore last Saturday," the girl testified, "but the date of his transfer was postponed. He promised to take me with him."

Joyce was arrested by City Detectives Harry Scott and Jerry Deasy as he stepped from the stage and was taken to Central Station and placed in a cell, pending arrangements for the furnishing of bail.

Joyce, it was announced several

RAIN HOLDS UP BALLOON SHOW

All events on the afternoon program of the 1929 National Elimination Balloon Races at the Pitt Stadium were cancelled today when a drizzling rain kept spectators away from the stadium.

It was announced at the balloon race headquarters that the evening program will be carried out in full if the downpour ceases.

It will include ground exhibits, a band concert, aerial demonstrations and a circus troup, and an address by Commander Charles A. Rosendahl, of the United States Naval dirigible Los Angeles.

At noon tomorrow, before the start of the program, three Goodyear "baby blimps" are scheduled to land at Bettis Field. Weather conditions prevented an effort to make the flight here today. Amelia Earhart, first woman trans-Atlantic flier, is expected today.

Black Diamonds in Air Crash Found

STERLING, Ill., May 2.—(AP.)—One hundred and three black diamonds have been taken from the earth near Harmon, Ill., it was revealed today. The jewels are part of the shipment of 133 which were lost there on March 22 when a mail plane crashed. The stones, part of a $30,000 shipment, were recovered after diligent mining by Postmaster John Moyer and Superintendent of Mails Verne Schrock of Dixon, Ill.

TAXI FARE INCREASE COMING

A proposal to raise taxicab fares in Pittsburgh, effective May 20, was exposed today by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

No gesture had been made by Mayor Charles H. Kline or the city, through its legal department, to forestall the fare boost until officials had learned of the proposed increase through this newspaper.

Both the Yellow and Green Cab companies have filed with the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg notice of intention to raise their fares.

MAYOR INDIGNANT

The Mayor said the Public Service Commission usually notified him of petitions and applications filed with it which related to Pittsburgh, but he had not been informed of the taxi companies' plan to raise fares. There was no excuse, he angrily declared, for the proposed increase.

"Pittsburgh," he said, "already pays the highest taxi fares of any city in the country. Why, I can go to New York and ride nearly all day for what our taxi companies would charge for a trip from the City-County Building to the Frick Building.

ASKS TAX QUESTIONS

"So they say they have to raise rates because of the increase of 1 cent in the state gasoline tax? They are going to pass it on to their passengers, are they? Well, who is going to compensate the owners of private automobiles? Who is going to pay the tax for truck owners?"

"How does it come," the Mayor was asked, "that neither you nor the city law department knew of this matter until the Sun-Tele-

EDITH DE ANGELIS.

After Edith, 21, Cecil, Pa., told county detectives that she had been employed as nurse in a private hospital in Lincoln avenue where "four or five babies were done away with," District Attorney Gardner ordered a sweeping inquiry into "baby farm" operators in the county.

'BABY FARM' INQUISITION IN COUNTY IS UNDER WAY

Activities of "baby farm" operators in Allegheny County were made the subject of a sweeping inquiry today by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, who ordered all available resources of the county detective bureau utilized to uncover any such institutions here.

Gardner's action was prompted by declarations of Edith de Angelis, 21, of Cecil, who yesterday told county detectives that she had been employed as a nurse in a private hospital in Lincoln avenue, where "four or five babies were done away with."

At the same time, city detectives were investigating the origin of drug prescriptions allegedly found on the girl when she was arrested in a downtown department store. In Morals Court today, Miss De Angelis was held for court on a larceny charge in connection with reported purchases of clothing on other women's charge accounts.

The prescriptions, detectives said, had been issued by a Fifth avenue physician, whose association with the girl were under scrutiny.

In her story to county detectives, the girl named her former employer, and a warrant for the woman whom the girl accused of being the "baby farm" head was sworn out by City Detective Frank Dodson.

Detectives of both city and county forces attempted to find the alleged "baby farm" in the Lincoln avenue district, but were told by residents there that it had been moved to Glenshaw. County Detective Harry Barker was sent to Glenshaw to make an investigation there.

BUCS, ST. LOUIS GAME OFF

The Pirates - Cardinals game, scheduled at Forbes Field today, was called off shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon when a heavy rain drenched the Oakland orchard. The postponed contest will be played here on July 3, an open date on both the Pittsburgh and St. Louis schedules.

The Cardinals left late today for New York, where they open an eastern invasion against the Giants tomorrow.

The Bucs remain here to battle the world champion New York Yankees in an exhibition game tomorrow. They are to oppose the Braves in Boston on Saturday.

Burleigh Grimes and Rolly Hemsley brought injuries back from St. Louis. The spitball pitched had his pitching hand hurt in the second game of the series, while Hemsley was spiked in yesterday's fight.

The Buccos will take on the Yankees at Forbes Field tomorrow.

NEWS GRAB BY POWER WIDENS

WASHINGTON, May 2.—With the disclosure already made that the International Paper and Power Company has direct and indirect financial interest in 14 newspapers along the Atlantic seaboard and in the South, the Federal Trade Commission today was expected to call additional witnesses in its investigation of the alleged domination of some American newspaper by power interests.

It was reported that Frank E. Gannett, Rochester publisher, and Harold Hall and William Lavarre, publishers of three Southern papers, may be called to testify before the commission.

Archibald R. Graustein, president of the International Paper and Power Company, has told, under questioning by Judge Robert E. Healy, chief of commission counsel, of the company's interest in the 14 papers.

CONGRESS STIRRED

A commission investigator will be sent to New York in the near future, it was said, to examine stockholders' lists of Graustein's company to find out whether any of the gigantic power companies are directly interested in the International Paper and Power Company.

Graustein told the commission of financial aid given to four newspapers, said to be controlled by Gannett, in New York state, and defended the expenditure of more than $10,000,000 in newspaper interests as "good business," saying they provided an outlet for newsprint paper

WHAT EDITORS SAY OF TRUST

NEW YORK, May 2.—Purchasing newspapers by power companies prompted the following editorial comment in New York newspapers.

NEW YORK TIMES: Defending before a committee of the Massachusetts Legislature the purchase of half or more of the Boston Herald-Traveler, Mr. Graustein, the president of the International Paper and Power Company, gave as the reason for his company's investment the "common interest" between paper mills and newspapers. As proof he cited the fact that the New York Times has a newsprint mill in Canada. But that analogy is a woeful misfit. The Times, it is true, has a half interest in the newsprint mill referred to, of which it consumes nearly the entire output. In Boston, however, the newspaper is owned by the newsprint mill; in New York it is the mill which is owned by the newspaper. Mr. Graustein's newsprint corporation is also in the public utility business. Thus arousing a natural public sus-

SEEK NEW GIRL IN TORCH CASE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 2.—(INS.)—The cynical, ever-present "Cherchez La Femme" assumed the major role in New York's torch murder mystery today.

With Earl Francis Peacox held to the grand jury on a murder charge for the slaying and subsequent cremation of Dorothy Peacox, his pretty bride of a year, authorities today centered their efforts on establishing the identity of the woman alleged to have been Peacox's companion when he purchased two bottles of kerosene with which to reduce the evidence of his crime to ashes.

District Attorney Frank Coyne, indicating his belief that Miss Frances Newman, Peacox's "girl friend," was not the mystery woman, said he intended to question garage employes who sold the kerosene to Peacox. Miss Newman is held under $10,000 bail as a material witness.

Eugene Bussey, sophomore of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, arrived in New York

CIVIC HUB URGED BY EXPERT

BULLETIN.

The report of Lincoln S. Dickey, recommending the Oakland site for the Town Hall was received by the County Planning Commission late today.

Probable selection of Oakland as the site for the $6,000,000 Town Hall was indicated today in a statement of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

McGovern announced that Lincoln S. Dickey, the expert engaged by the Chamber of Commerce committee to suggest a location from five of more than a score of sites offered, had recommended the Oakland location, bounded by Bigelow boulevard, Fifth avenue, Ruskin avenue and Lytton avenue, in the heart of the civic center of that district.

THINKS IT SETTLED

The minority commissioner strongly intimated that the choice of Dickey settled the problem of a site insofar as "the powers that be" are concerned. He did not indicate his personal preference.

"I have been informed that Mr. Dickey has recommended the Oakland or Nicola site," said McGovern. "That means that the same group who selected the site for the county airport likely will pick the location for the Town Hall."

"I sat with the County Planning Commission through their deliberations which narrowed the choice from 24 to five sites, the Duquesne Garden property, the Nicola site, the Schenley Park entrance, Monument Hill

MASON UNDERGOES KNIFE FOLLOWING BEATING IN GYM

James (Red) Mason, veteran local manager of boxers, who suffered severe face injuries in an impromptu ring battle with Abie Witz, former flyweight boxer of Canonsburg, and now a rival manager, in the ring in Flynn's gymnasium, downtown, yesterday, today underwent an operation in Mercy Hospital to have his broken nose reset.

In addition to the broken nose, Mason, who is 63 years old, emerged from the battle with his 21-year-old foe with both eyes blackened.

The fight was the outgrowth of a long standing feud between the men, and resulted when Mason began to "ride" Witz about the latter's boxers. He finally offered to put the gloves on with Witz, according to witnesses, and forced Abie to accept his challenge. The better conditioned Witz proved too much for the veteran and the damage was over in short order.

Havey J. Boyle, state boxing commissioner, said today he would take no action against the principals in the bout.

"I understand it was a private settling of a grudge," he said, "and, inasmuch as it did not occur at a regular fight club, I do not see how the commission would have any authority in the matter."

LEGISLATORS FACE GAS TAX QUIZ

Today, motorists are looking to the many Allegheny County legislators who helped pass the four-cent gasoline tax for an explanation.

Gov. Fisher approved the measure along with bills for increased fees for motor trucks and busses and operators' licenses.

The entire highway construction and finance program also were approved yesterday.

Here is the way the Allegheny County legislators voted on the gasoline tax increase, which is expected to net $9,000,000 additional revenue for the year, effective beginning July 1.

House—William T. Bell, Clayton A. Dietrich, Matthew A. Dunn, Edward B. Goehring, Joseph R. Lynch, Joseph C. Marcus, William F. McCann, Michael J. Muldowney, John S. Purucker, George H. Soffel, William F. Stadtlander, Joseph G. Steedle.

NO—Senate—Morris Eginstein, Frank J. Harris and William D. Mansfield.

The motor increases become effective January 1, 1930, and are expected to bring in $4,000,000 above the present revenues per year.

BILLS SIGNED

HARRISBURG, May 2.—By the paring of the appropriations of the township award bill from $8,000,000 to $6,000,000 and the state-aid measure from $5,000,000 to $2,000,000, the total additional cost was reduced to $10,500,000 per year. It is intended to apply the other $2,500,000 to other new construction of state highways.

Other bills of the construction program approved were:

The Wheeler-Flynn bill to appropriate $23,500,000 to begin completion of the primary highway system, the money to be allotted to the counties on the basis of the ratio of unimproved roads in the county to the uncompleted mileage in the entire state, no appropriation to exceed, however, $600,000 or fall below $200,000.

TAKE COUNTY BRIDGES

The Gelnett bill providing for the taking over by the state of all county bridges on state highways.

The Heffran bill to set aside $2,000,000 for the maintenance of city streets on state highways except in Philadelphia for a width of 18 feet, and the Mathay bill appropriating $750,000 to Philadelphia for the same purpose.

The Griffith bill providing township reward maintenance at the rate of not more than $100 per mile where townships match the state's share dollar for dollar.

The Gelder-Brown bill allocating township reward on the basis of the assessed valuation per mile of improved road, intended to particularly benefit the poorer townships.

The Bickett bill appropriating $500,000 for the maintenance of township reward roads.

The average increases in license fees are:

Ten per cent for trucks with pneumatic tires, 50 per cent for solid-tired trucks, 50 per cent for trailers and semi-trailers, 25 per cent for trucks with semi-pneumatic or "cushion" tires, 25 to 100 per cent for busses with pneumatic tires, depending on size, and 50 to 100 per cent on solid-tired busses.

The cost of operators' licenses was raised from $1 to $2 a year, and learners' permits from $2.50 to $3.

SIGNS FARM BILLS

A "little farm relief" program of legislation intended to safeguard the interests of farmers in co-operative agricultural associations was approved yesterday by Gov. Fisher.

Two bills sponsored by Representative Haines, of Bucks County, comprise the program. One provides penalties for willful breaches of marketing contracts and for spreading false reports concerning the financial condition of the corporations and allows the associations to buy stock in other similar bodies. Issuance of capital stock by the associations is permitted in the other, with provisions that only voting stock is to be held by the farmers that no one farmer may own more than 5 per cent of the entire issue and that each stockholder is entitled to only one vote.

JAILED, WHOOPEE ESCAPES CELL

INSPECTOR HOEY WHOOPEE M'GURK

"You bad boy, you're in now after keeping two steps ahead of my police for the past 12 days" is what Inspector James N. Hoey's finger meant as he locked up McGurk at Central Police Station after a pedestrain trapped McGurk downtown.

WHOOPEE M'GURK BREAKS JAIL; $100 FOR RECAPTURE

"Whoopee" McGurk, made all the more defiant and desperate by his capture and arrest yesterday in front of Donahoe's Fifth avenue store, downtown, escaped in some mysterious manner early this morning from Central Police Station.

He's loose again, Mr. Jiggs has not found Dinty Moore. Maggie's diamond necklace, which Mr. Jiggs loaned to Dinty Moore, also is like Whoopee McGurk—missing. The plot is thicker and deeper all around.

CAUGHT BY CITIZEN

Whoopee McGurk, for whose arrest the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph offered a $100 reward, was caught shortly before noon on Wednesday by Frank D. Maurer, 26, an inspector for the Duquesne Slag Products Company. Maurer received the $100 reward and went home chuckling over the way he had arrested the man who could solve all of Jiggs' troubles.

NOISY PRISONER

Police Inspector James N. Hoey personally locked Whoopee McGurk in a cell in the Central police station. The notorious prisoner muttered around for several hours and then got quiet. At 12:27 o'clock this morning a turnkey passed Whoopee's cell. He was still there. Shortly after 1 a. m., turnkeys had to go to quiet McGurk, as he had started making such whoopee that fellow prisoners complained they could not sleep.

CELL "OUT OF ORDER"

Some time later Whoopee escaped from his cell and vanished.

The escape was discovered when policemen went to Whoopee's cell to get him for arraignment. The cell door was open. Whoopee also had shot the proverbial Parthian arrow. On the cell door was a crudely made sign, "Out of Order." Inside the cell was Whoopee's old blue topcoat.

Police tickers flashed the word throughout the city and outlying towns were notified. All railroad stations were placed under guard and special detachments watched the various river bridges and the Liberty Tubes. Bettis Field and the airports were notified.

HURLS DEFI

These precautions were all withdrawn a short time later when a mysterious telegram, locally sent, reached police headquarters. That part of it given out for publication said:

"I defy everybody in Pittsburgh. I'm going to stay in Pittsburgh. I like the town. Catch me if you can. Whoopee, Boom, Boom."

Therefore, the Sun-Telegraph does hereby offer another $100 reward, this time for the recapture of Whoopee McGurk. The first person catching him, provided that person at the time has in his or her possession a clipping of the current day's Bringing Up Father strip from the Sun-Telegraph, will get the money. It's new money for the same old Whoopee. Half of Whoopee's disguise—the old blue overcoat—has been left behind, so it ought to be doubly easy for citizenry or police to get him. Employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their families are not eligible, nor is Mr. Frank D. Maurer, who is one of the few who have seen Whoopee's face, close-up, and made anything by it.

Bernard Shaw Takes New Slap at Critics

LONDON, May 2.—(INS.)—In a preface to a cheap edition of his "Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism and Capitalism," published today, George Bernard Shaw again jabbed at his critics by declaring that nobody has yet been able to understand the book.

"My aims and proposals go so much further than any of my hostile critics are capable of conceiving," he stated in the preface, "that I am only too thankful to be mistaken for a mere harmless utopian instead of being hanged with benefit of clergy."

OFFICER DENIED BAIL IN KILLING

Judge James B. Drew in Criminal Court today refused to admit to bail Patrolman James L. Shaw, of the Woods Run Police Station, who, on April 2, is alleged to have fatally shot Charner Dee, Negro, of Porter street. Dee is alleged to have been fatally wounded while fleeing from the officer after he had resisted arrest. Shaw tried to arrest the man when he refused to move after a dice game had been broken up, it is alleged.

Attorney Harry A. Diamond presented the petition, and in refusing, Judge Drew said that the policeman's case could be tried immediately.

Expert Says Meteor May Level New York

NEW YORK, May 2.—(INS.)—That New York City some day may be destroyed by a meteor which will knock the metropolis "as flat as a pancake," was the declaration today of Dr. Charles P. Olivier, director of the University of Pennsylvania Observatory and leading authority on meteors. In an address at the Amateur Astronomers' Association, Dr. Olivier said that no inhabited part of the earth was safe from the colossal disaster which would result from a bombardment of a meteorite such as the one which struck the wilds of Siberia some years ago.

MELLON'S PART IN MERGER PROBED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—A searching investigation into the participation of Andrew W. Mellon in the merger of the Aluminum Company of America with the Canadian Development Company four years ago probably will be undertaken by the Senate Judiciary Committee before rendering a verdict on his eligibility to serve as Secretary of the Treasury, it was learned today.

A proposal to call Secretary Mellon for questioning was discussed for two hours today by the Judiciary Committee but no action was taken. The committee decided to meet again tomorrow.

The committee already has possession of a deposition, made by Mellon last July in a lawsuit growing out of the merger, which has thrown a new light on his connection with the aluminum company.

"FACTOR" IN BUSINESS

In his deposition, Mellon admitted he was a "factor" in the affairs of the company and that he was consulted on questions regarding the "policy" of the company. It showed he participated in the negotiations, resulting in the merger, and that the final terms were not agreed to until after they had his approval.

A copy of the Mellon deposition, obtained by International News Service, revealed how Mellon, in his own words, had told of his connections and activities with the aluminum company.

In his deposition, taken in a suit brought by George D. Haskell, a Springfield (Mass.), business man, against the aluminum company, Mellon said he had been "interested" in the concern "almost since the inception of the corporation."

OWNED 15 PER CENT

Mellon testified he owned about 15 per cent of the stock of the aluminum company, and that his brother, R. B. Mellon, owned a similar amount.

The deposition showed that Arthur V. Davis, a Mellon subordinate, and president of the company, arranged a dinner at Mellon's home here between the secretary, James B. Duke, late financier, and George G. Allen, a Duke subordinate. At the conference, the deposition showed, Duke sought to interest Mellon in acquiring the Canadian concern, which owned a number of waterpower sites.

DR. SKEFFINGTON DEMONSTRATING STEREO-CAMPIMETER

NEW DISEASE-FINDING EYE INSTRUMENT DESCRIBED

A new method of eye test, which brings closer contact between the medical profession and the optometrist, was outlined by Dr. A. M. Skeffington before members of the Pittsburgh Optometric Association at the opening of a five-day graduate clinic in the William Penn Hotel last night.

Dr. Skeffington, a fellow of the American Academy of Optometry and member of the American Optometric Association, demonstrated how a new method of diagnosing disease is carried out through two instruments known as the stereo-campimeter and the perimeter. Through such a test, he said, it is possible for the optometrist to determine the existence of latent symptoms of disease and direct the patient to the proper medical specialist to correct the condition causing eye disorder.

The state of health is indicated through perimetric readings of the patient's ability to place colors and by the nerve force that can be measured as flowing into the eye, according to Dr. Skeffington's theory. He contended that three-fourths of the number of persons suffering from eye ills are victims of a toxic condition and that this can be discovered through measurement of the visual field.

HARRISBURG, May 2. — The gubernatorial ax fell today on a bill of Representative Black, of Fayette, which was designed to prohibit the use of physical violence against persons detained for crime. JOYCE JAILED IN GIRL CASE days ago, would conclude his engagement of a year here May 11 and go to Loew's Century Theater in Baltimore.

"Peggy," a student in John M. Conroy School, was arraigned on a charge of being a runaway. She disappeared Sunday night, April 21, after attending a party at the home of a girl friend on the North Side.

Her parents enlisted aid of the Missing Persons Bureau.

FOUND AT SISTER'S

Michael Feeney, head of the bureau, and Miss A. E. Gordon, policewoman, began a search for the girl, it was testified today, and found her Tuesday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Loretta Kunkel, 1425 Sedgwick street.

Arraigned with the Burns girl was Lawrence O'Malley, 25, of 8 Marie place, who, it was testified, had been seen downtown in company with the girl.

"Peggy" testified that O'Malley had nothing to do with her disappearance from home. O'Malley was held over until the girl's story is investigated.

The elder Joyce in claiming the case a "frameup" said:

"The first contact we had ever had with this girl was the week before last. About five o'clock one evening she appeared at the Heinrich Dancing School with which Teddy is affiliated, and reported to Mr. Joe Shaw that she had had a telephone conversation with Teddy at the theater. In their conversation with Teddy she claimed she attended the same school in Youngstown that Teddy did. She said she could dance, but wanted to join the class. "Teddy advised her to see Mr. Shaw.

"CAME TO SCHOOL"

"When she appeared at the school she was unaware I was Teddy's father. Mr. Shaw talked to her, but due to her actions and conduct he turned her down. Later in the evening she returned at a dance and her conduct became so obnoxious that Mr. Shaw was forced to put her out.

"Teddy never met her and if he did see her there that evening he was unaware who she was. That night she called Teddy at the theater. I happened to be in his dressing room at the time. She informed Teddy that Mr. Shaw insulted her. Teddy, unaware of what had taken place, asked me what had happened. After being told he informed the girl that she was not the type they desired at the school. He did not speak more than 10 more words at the most.

"That was the last time he talke dto her, and he never did meet her personally."

LANNING SILENT

Livingston Lanning, manager of the theater, when asked regarding his knowledge of the case, replied:

"The management has nothing to say in the case since we knew Teddy never met the girl at the theater."

FATHER BLAMED JOYCE

At the time the girl's father reported her disappearance to the police, he told them, they reported, that "Peggy's" head had been turned by Joyce's attentions and that she had become stage struck. He subsequently offered $100 reward for finding her.

At the conclusion of the hearing she was remanded to the matron's department at Central station.

GIVE RELIEF, ATTORNEY URGES

While thousands of Pittsburghers are signing petitions asking Congress to reduce the tax on earned incomes their protests against the inequality of federal taxation have been voiced by William S. Moorhead, prominent Pittsburgh attorney and former chairman of the tax simplification board of the American Bar Association.

Mr. Moorhead points out in a statement today that as a result of exemptions and delinquencies, only 6 per cent of the population pay income taxes, and declares that some citizens well able to contribute to the expense of the government escape a large measure of taxation by investment in tax-exempt securities.

WAGE EARNERS NICKED

Regarding the tax on earned incomes, Mr. Moorhead says:

Generally speaking, earned incomes pay a proportionately higher rate of tax than unearned incomes due largely to deductions that are available to persons whose income is derived from the ownership of property. This statement is subject to some qualification, but I believe it is generally true.

The justice of a measure of relief in favor of earned incomes seems to be generally admitted. The difficulty would arise in the administration of the relief, involving as it would a determination of what is earned income.

Salaries, wages and fees manifestly constitute earned income. What is to be done in the case of the corner grocer, whose income is due partly to capital and partly to personal services? Many other instances of the difficulty in allocating income either to capital or labor will occur to you. Of course, the corner grocer may solve his difficulties by incorporation, but this is an unsatisfactory answer. Theoretically, the line should be drawn between real earned and real unearned income, but practically it is impossible.

URGES RELIEF

It is my view that any relief in favor of earned income must be confined to earnings which are not derived in whole or in part from capital or in which the employment of capital is not necessary and is only incidental. Otherwise, such a provision would be impossible of satisfactory administration. The fact that absolute justice cannot be obtained should not stand in the way of affording relief which will reach the great majority of cases and which may be availed of in others with little trouble.

While the canvass for signatures to petitions goes on with intensive energy in various parts of the city and suburbs, individuals protesting against the system of imposing taxes on earned incomes continue to send in petitions clipped from the Sun-Telegraph. These come from all sections of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia and add materially to the total number of petitions on hand. Many persons have written their views on the tax question and some unique arguments have been advanced proving that justice to all the people can be had only when the levy on earned incomes is reduced.

NEW KENSINGTON MINERS STRIKE OVER WAGE CUTS

The Barking mine of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company was idle today as 300 miners on strike over a wage reduction refused to return to work.

The strikers held a meeting in Broad Hall, New Kensington, and decided not to accept the pay cut. Before the meeting a committee of the miners had conferred with officials of the coal company but was unable to reach an agreement.

The miners walked out yesterday when the new wage scale was posted. According to reports to P. T. Fagan, mine union leader, the Barking miners are the first to strike over the wage reduction, also put into effect by the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

WOMAN BEATEN, ROBBED OF $10,740

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., May 2.—Police of Brownsville and surrounding towns today were searching for three bandits who bound, gagged and beat Mrs. Susie Shedlock, 47, and robbed her of $10,740, her life savings.

After the robbery, the bandits sped away in an auto in the direction of Centerville, Pa. It took 15 minutes for Mrs. Shedlock to free herself and spread the alarm. By that time the robbers had made good their escape and pursuit was futile.

The robbery occurred yesterday in the woman's home at Daisytown, four miles from here. Two of the bandits entered the house while the third remained at the wheel of the waiting auto.

Mrs. Shedlock at first refused to reveal the hiding place of the money but was beaten until she told where the savings were secreted.

RAID JAILS 5 AS POLICEMAN DIES

After a city patrolman had been found dead last night in the South Hills Republican Club, 1321 Grandview avenue, police arrested five men in the club and confiscated 30 cases of beer they said club employes were trying to spirit away when they arrived.

The dead man, Patrolman Thomas R. Nevin, 50, of 221 Edith street, attached to Central Station, died of natural causes, in the opinion of Dr. George R. Winters, of 112 Cohasset street, who examined him.

While Lieut. John McDonough was on his way to Nevin's home to tell the widow of her husband's death, the Mt. Washington Station police patrol, in which McDonough was riding, struck two autos at Shaler street and Grandview avenue. McDonough was thrown through the windshield and suffered severe lacerations.

Police arrested Fred Dutton, 22, of 660 Oneida street; Coleman Griffin, 22, of 516 Augusta street; Harold Miller, 23, of 225 Sweetbriar street; William Schidel, 48, of 20 Carson street, and John Huber, 42, who gave his address as 2004 South Twentieth street, a number which does not exist. The five were docketed as suspicious persons.

Through a driver's license the victim was identified as Edward Starr, 30, of 239 Main street, Lawrenceville. He was riding with Barone, of 212 Thirty-ninth street, and Mrs. Viola Waldman, of Kittanning street, West Etna, when the collision claimed the men's lives and injured Mrs. Waldman.

GIRL KIDNAPED BY GANG

CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP.)—Clayton Sherman's hat blew off last night, with the following results:

(1) Theft of one automobile; (2) kidnaping of Miss Dolores Bannan and, (3) two robberies.

Sherman, president of the H. P. Smith Paper Company, was driving with Miss Bannon on Sheridan road, when he lost his hat in the wind. He stopped and ran back half a block to retrieve it.

As he was returning two men leaped into the car and drove away with Miss Bannon. For five hours thereafter police sought the young woman. It was nearly 2 o'clock this morning when the doorbell rang at the Sherman house and Miss Bannon was found, in collapse, at the door.

TELLS OF KIDNAPING

She told what happened after her escort's hat blew off.

The men said they needed her for a blind while they robbed motorists. Several such holdups occurred while the girl was in the machine, she said, but that her screams saved two women from the thugs.

ANOTHER KIDNAPED

Miss Rosalie Rizzo, 20-year-old telephone operator, was kidnaped from a rooming house where she lived early today. Two men forced an entrance to her room with revolvers, slugged Allen Ferris, owner of the house, and a roomer, when they attempted to interfere, and carried the screaming young woman away in an automobile.

Mrs. Ferris told police that one of the abductors was John Rooney, who, she said, was a brother of Eddie Rooney, recently convicted of murder. The Rizzo girl had been out early last evening with Rooney and another man, and had returned with one eye blackened. She told Mrs. Ferris that Rooney had told her she "knew too much about him."

Oelrichs, member of a wealthy and socially prominent family, was formerly an attache at the American embassy in Berlin.

CHANGES DELAY FARM AID BILL

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—The mass of amendments offered to the farm relief bill in the Senate has forced administration leaders to conclude that final action on the measure will have to be postponed until next week.

Senator McNary of Oregon, chairman of the agriculture committee, is hopeful that the Senate will vote on the export debenture section tomorrow, but even this seems impossible in view of the large number of senators who have indicated a desire to discuss the proposal.

A Saturday session may be called to get the export debenture contest out of the way before the end of the week and if this aim is successful, the measure as a whole is likely to reach a vote Monday or Tuesday.

Although the amendment of Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, to eliminate the debenture plan, has caused the greatest discussion, considerable debate is expected also upon a number of the dozen or so changes advocated by other senators.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT TELLS WHY JONES LAW IS CURBED

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—Long established precedent and a belief that "enforcement by harassment is never justified" are held out by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions, as reasons for her directing district attorneys to use "a wise discretion" in application of the Jones law.

Her explanation of the letter is published by "The Union Signal," its official organ.

"The letter on the application of the new Jones amendment followed the precedent long established in the administration of the white slave act," she says. "Its purpose is to point out to United States attorneys the importance of a careful study of the evidence prior to instituting action, and the exercise of a wise discretion in fitting that evidence into the particular section of the law violation of which it will best prove in court. For, although the average man and woman may be unaware of the fact, every lawyer knows that the prosecutor must weigh evidence and choose under what section of the law he will plead the case.

"United States attorneys' offices have in the past used blanks charging sale just as a misdemeanor. They can no longer do that. If the evidence is inconsequential in character so that proof of more than illegal possession is doubtful, it is manifestly unfair to a defendant to attempt to prove a felony. Enforcement by harassment is never justified."

HIGH SCHOOL YOUTH SLAIN OVER ATTENTIONS TO GIRL

PORTSMOUTH, O., May 2.—(AP.)—Failure of William Sanford Wright, 18, baseball and basketball star of Wheelersburg (O.) High school, to heed a warning to cease attentions to a young woman in the neighborhood, is now blamed by authorities for his slaying late Tuesday night.

Wright's body was found on a wood cutter's block on the farm of Ernest Marsh, Powellsville, riddled with shot.

Meager clues were pieced together by authorities, who are convinced that Wright was shot by a motorist while walking along the Atlantic and Pacific highway to his home, two miles east of Wheelersburg.

County officials said they believed the body was taken into the automobile and removed to the Marsh farm.

Wadding from a shotgun shell was found in Wright's clothing, indicating that the youth was fired upon at close range.

Wright was last seen near midnight by a companion, Wilbur Brown, who said the athlete started walking home. They previously attended a motion picture show at Wheelersburg High School.

Wright lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Wright. His father is a clothing salesman.

Authorities said that Wright engaged in several fights in the past two weeks as a result of a warning to keep away from the young woman.

WAR ON DOPE EVIL WAGED ON 3 FRONTS IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The fight against the dope evil, creeping over the nation, was waged on three fronts in Washington yesterday.

Representative LaGuardia (R.) of New York, who delivered a stinging attack on prohibition on the floor of the House, warned that the increasing consumption of dope, especially among criminal elements, presented a problem grave and dangerous to the welfare of the country.

President Hoover was pledged the full support of the American Pharmaceutical Association in the effort to enforce the anti-drug laws and was urged to appoint a pharmacist to the presidential commission which is to investigate law enforcement.

Representative Porter (R.) of Pennsylvania held an extended conference with government legal advisers to complete the draft of the Narcotics Reorganization Bill which will be ready for the House early next week.

"An unholy stream of dope is flooding the country," declared LaGuardia, "Scoundreily peddlers are selling it everywhere. Dope inspires criminals with diabolical courage.

Dr. S. L. Hilton of Washington, a former president of the Pharmaceutical Association, headed the delegation which called on Mr. Hoover. They learned at the White House that the President's commission would be instructed to go thoroughly into all phases of narcotic abuses.

"We want the narcotic laws enforced to the fullest extent," said Dr. Hilton. "The druggists have shown every possible cooperation with the government in the handling of narcotics since enactment of the law.

Dr. Hilton suggested, however, that codeine, which is, barred by the United States as a dangerous drug, should be removed from the ban, "as it is not habit forming."

Codeine has been interdicted by law on the grounds that dangerous derivatives can be extracted from it.

After his conferences, Porter announced that the proposed new narcotics law "seems ideal to arm the government to control the illicit drug traffic."

Slain Holding Up Shop to Finance Honeymoon

KANSAS CITY, May 2.—(AP.)—Slain by a policeman's bullet, Carl C. Lobach, 21, was identified here as a bridegroom of but a few hours who attempted to finance a honeymoon by a holdup.

Lobach was shot and killed last night when, with an 18-year-old brother, Durward Lobach, he sought to rob a drugstore. Earlier in the day he had married Marie Bothwell, 18, a dance instructor, who had been led to believe he was a hard working motor car salesman.

Durward Lobach confessed that he and his brother had been implicated in scores of robberies here recently.

A feature of the show was the appearance of Margaret and Ruth Quinn, professional dancers, who were trained by Mr. Bowman, and who have just completed a vaudeville tour. "The Bowman Whoopee Girls," a group of 18 professionals, were well received.

SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY EVERY DRUGGIST

Here it is at last
a three purpose cheese product

Never before have we been able to offer a cheese product that would at once spread, slice and cook, and do each with equal facility and ease.

That is the surprising characteristic of Velveeta, the new cheese product. For aside from its new and decidedly better flavor, its velvety texture, this delicious new dairy food can be used in all of these ways equally well.

Velveeta is a new idea in cheese making. We extract from the pure whole milk more Vitamins, Lactose (milk sugar), Calcium and other milk minerals than ever was possible before by old methods, and these we add in making Velveeta. The result is purely a milk product that looks like cheese, tastes like cheese, but which because of its enhanced food value should be called a super-cheese.

Velveeta has a delicacy of flavor that pleases everyone—young or old. Children love it and it's as digestible as milk itself. Try a package, you'll marvel at its rich creamy goodness.

A Help to Child Health

That childish between-meal hunger is at once delighted and satisfied when "Philadelphia" Cream Cheese is used as a spread.

And it is one of the most desirable foods your child can have. Not only is it a fine dairy product, made from pure whole milk with fresh rich cream added, but it is especially rich in those two vital food elements, Calcium and Vitamin A, about which all Child Specialists and Dietitians agree are essential for sound teeth, straight bones and normal growth.

We guard very jealously the purity of "Philadelphia" Cream Cheese, and so, to protect its creamy richness all the way to your table, we wrap it in small tinfoil packages. It is never sold in bulk.

POWER TRUST'S NEWS GRAB WIDENS

manufactured by the International concern.

Graustein declared his company intended to increase its newspaper holdings whenever it is deemed desirable to do so.

While the commission disclosures were rocking both houses of congress, exciting a storm of attack upon the power companies' tactics and indications of their condemnation from the floor f the Senate today, the commission also had before it complaints regarding another newspaper in Mobile, Ala.

SEEK MONEY SOURCE

This paper has just been started, allegedly by President Thomas W. Martin and other Alabama Power company interests. It is understood the commission will investigate the circumstances surrounding its establishment, and where the money to finance it came from.

The commission has evidence that the power company's men were incensed over their inability to get their propaganda published in the Thompson papers in Mobile, although they claimed clear entry into almost all other papers in their territory. It has been charged that this was the reason for starting the new Mobile paper.

A commission investigation will be sent to New York shortly to examine the list of stockholders of the International company. Healy said the object was to find out whether any of the big power groups, such as the Insulls or Stone and Webster, are directly interested in the paper and power corporation which has secretly invaded the newspaper field from New England to the South, and westward to Chicago.

SCAN DEBT ANGLE

The International Company, which has bought most of its newspapers in the last few months, has been revealed as the parent of the New England Power Association, one of the country's largest hydroelectric and utility systems.

Graustein also will be directed to examine his company's books and report any big bills for newsprint paper which are overdue. This is to determine whether the company carries accounts of such character as would give it practical control of the debtor newspapers.

The commission also will inquire into a pending deal in which the International Company is to pay $750,000 for an interest in an unidentified newspaper. Graustein was permitted to withhold the paper's name until his deal was either carried through or abandoned.

Commission attorneys and financial experts meanwhile will undertake a comparison of the $5,300,300 price paid by the International Company for half the stock of the Boston Herald and the Boston Traveler, with the earnings of those papers.

WILL TEST CLAIMS

This price represented a value of $10,760,600 for the entire property, or nearly 13 times the annual earnings, as Graustein testified these earnings were indicated at the time of the negotiations. Despite this ratio Graustein and two of the stockholders who sold half their interest to him contended that the price was too low.

The commission wishes to test these statements and also to study the figures for their bearing upon the motives for the purchase.

The commission also will send for a copy of the voting trust agreement entered into by the International company and the other stockholders of the Boston papers.

Graustein represented this agreement as effectively removing any possibility of editorial control by his power and paper company, by lodging this control in three trustees.

It developed yesterday that one of the trustees is a director of the General Electric Company and at least four utility companies, as well as the International company. Another is a director of two big power corporations.

Well Rigger Killed When Hit by Pole

OIL CITY, Pa., May 2.—(AP.)—A heavy pole fell on Leonard A. Harper, 27, while rigging a well on his father's lease here yesterday, killing him instantly.

Editors' Views on Power Trust Grab

picion of some of the motives for its entry into journalism.

All details of the International's purchase are to be sought by the Federal Trade Commission, which yesterday began to hear of a surprisingly wide extent of journalistic financing. Buying or remarkably benevolent aiding of newspaper projects by paper-power interests has been observed in other sections of the country, and the press of New England is aroused over the local example. The International justifies its act by asserting that its paper mills must run at a certain peak to be profitable, and to obtain the newsprint orders necessary to assure that peak, it decided to buy into the newspaper business.

Carrying out this reasoning to its limit, a road-paving company, in order to be certain of getting all the orders from the commonwealth of Massachusetts, might propose to purchase the state. Senators Norris and Walsh have pointed out that the federal trade commission has lately discovered persistent propaganda activities by the power interests generally, attempting to work through newspapers. Much of this has been futile, much of it has been foolish, but some deliberate poisoning of the well of information has been revealed. The whole foundation of honest journalism is laid on the principle that newspaper ownership should have no interest save in publishing facts and making fair editorial comment on them.

SECRECY CITED

Ownership that has a financial interest in the public domain, over which there is steady controversy between private operation and the government, has never proved effective in the manufacture of a distinterested or reliable newspaper. The fact that such type of ownership is usually concealed as long as possible is another proof that it is often disingenuous in its purpose. For all of these reasons the growing tendency of utilities interests to buy established newspapers is unsettling not only to the press itself, but to men in public life who are the objects of the criticism of the press, and to the public, which must depend on the information it receives from the press. Calling for light on all the details of the Boston purchase, the Worcester (Mass.) Post says: "All collection of paper and ink are not newspapers in the true sense of the world. The newspaper which measures up to the standards of conscientious journalism is the newspaper which is an institution, which feels that its duty to the public comes before all else and will not permit any influence to turn it one inch from honest public service."

Many other journals in the section where the transaction occurred express the same concern. That concern is natural, particularly among newspaper customers of the International, which may henceforth be suspected, though innocent of being financed by the paper-power corporation because they buy its output.

Other New York Views

The NEW YORK TELEGRAM: Government revelations of rapid acquisition of newspaper stock throughout the country by the International Paper and Power Company have profoundly shocked the nation.

Democracy depends on a free press. A press controlled by the power interests—or any other outside interests—cannot be free.

The NEW YORK SUN: It is of vital importance to the newspaper business of this country that it remain under the control of newspaper people, free from economic pressure and utterly beyond suspicion of outer influence. If unselfish regard for the public interest did not ask this, then selfish desire for self-preservation certainly would demand it.

The NEW YORK EVENING POST: The International Paper and Power ompany is doing poor service to industry off which it lives by making large investments in newspapers. It is shaking public confidence in the press.

The NEW YORK MORNING WORLD: The policy on which the International Paper and Power Company has embarked, and the success with which its efforts have been attended seems to us the most profoundly disturbing development which has marked the history of the American press in many years.

Power Press comment from other cities included the following:

WASHINGTON, D. C., DAILY NEWS: Government revelation of rapid acquisition of newspaper stock throughout the country by the International Paper and Power Company have profoundly shocked the nation.

Democracy depends on a free press. A press controlled by the power interests—or any other outsides interests—can not be free. If other power and public utilities groups are as widely implicated as the International Paper and Power Company, penetration of the press by special interests has reached menacing proportions. The government investigation must be continued. The public must be on guard. The chief danger of such a power-press hookup is secrecy. Power interests, and any others, have a complete legal right to found or to buy as many newspepers as they can get, but the public has an equal right—which it is usually quick to exercise—of refusing to trust the freedom and fairness of such newspapers. The graveyards of the press are filled with public utility newspapers.

Senators Voice Ire

Statements made in Washington by United States senators follow:

HIRAM W. JOHNSON, Senator from California: The disclosures before the Federal Trade Commission bring into the open what we suspected.

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE, Jr., Senator from Wisconsin: The revelations are a challenge to the very existence of representative government in America.

CLARENCE C. DILL, Senator from Washington: Disclosures no longer leave room for doubt that the power monopoly is the gravest menace that ever confronted a free people.

BURTON K. WHEELER, Senator from Montana: The power trust seeks to control the press, the radio and all other means of communication and education, to regulate the economic, financial and political life of the country.

ROBERT W. HOWELL, senator from Nebraska: These disclosures will help to make the people realize the vast extent of the propaganda of the power monopoly in this country.

JOHN J. BLAINE, senator from Wisconsin: The disclosures demonstrate that a means must be found to restrict utilities companies to their particular field—the sale of heat, light and power.

ALL A MISTAKE—BOYS HUNGRY, NOT BANDITS

Three youths who asked for bread in Wilkinsburg today received a trip to the police station, then free meals and freedom.

The ride to a cell resulted from the mistake of H. H. Levenson, who mistook the boys for bandits when they entered his store at Hay and Kelly streets, Wilkinsburg, and asked for a loaf of bread. He called police.

At the police station the boys said they were Bernard Hooper, 18; Melvin Berry, 17, and Vincent Syret, 18. They had not eaten since Monday, when they set out from their homes at Edendarn, Pa., afoot for Pittsburgh, they told police.

So Patrolman Jacob Frey, who had gone out hurriedly to arrest them, went almost as hurriedly to get them food. A short time later they were told to take the road again.

County Roads Closed For Improvements

The closing of numerous county roads while inmprovements are being made has been announced by the County Department of Public Works. The roads which will remain closed until improvements are completed are: Simpson-Howell road, Elizabeth Township; Warrendale-Bayne extension, Marshall Township; Vanadium road extension, Scott Township; Saw Mill Run boulevard, McKinley Park branch; Windgap road, between Ingram and McKees Rocks. Paved roads closed are: Washington pike, Greentree Borough; Braddock avenue, in Swissvale, and East Carson street between Becks Run and Glass Run roads.

STORE QUITTING

BASKIN FURNITURE STORE TO RETIRE

Great surprise was occasioned among the furniture merchants of Pittsburgh when the announcement was made that L. Baskin would retire from business. For more than 23 years, the Baskin store has been prominent in the commercial life of the city, and the big store at 807 to 811 Federal Street, North Side, has long been known to Pittsburghers. From a small beginning, the store has grown steadily until it occupies the large three-floor building shown above. Its reputation has been widespread, and the firm has built a name for quality and service that is second to none. The decision of Mr. Baskin to retire came suddenly and no reason except a desire to retire from active business-life was announced. No information was given out as to what was to be done with the stock on hand, although it was intimated that a public sale would be held in the near future.

CHARTER URGED IN PLEA FROM ARMSTRONG

As "one citizen of Allegheny County to another" County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong has issued a statement urging every voter to study the Metropolitan plan carefully and then vote for it at the special election to be held June 25.

"Selfish motives should be set aside in deciding this question," his statement asserts, and "petty jealousies, bias and prejudice or friction should be forgotten. The only question involved is whether the people of Allegheny County will gain or lose by the passage or defeat of the question."

The statement points out that $140,000 has been appropriated for the election and urges that it should be participated in by every qualified voter of the county.

Armstrong declared that his statement is not as an official of the county or of the Republican county committee, but "as one of its citizens interested in the welfare of the city of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County.

COUNTY REPORT FIGHT TAKEN TO COURT

After having filed an individual motion to have Controller Robert G. Woodside's annual report stricken from the record, County Commissioner Charles G. McGovern, through his attorneys, has filed a taxpayer's suit in Common Pleas Court protesting the report.

The taxpayers' appeal, filed before Judge Thomas J. Ford, contains the allegations that Woodside's report is inaccurate and does not show the financial standing of Allegheny County. This was charged in McGovern's motion filed several weeks ago and to which Woodside demurred on the ground that as an individual McGovern had no legal right to file the motion.

After the report was filed, McGovern explained that the taxpayers have the right of appeal to higher courts from the decision in the suit which may be rendered by Common Pleas Court.

The signers of the latest petition are: Charles W. Longmore, A. D. Starrett, H. F. Reed, W. B. Hodby, William D. Moore, George Pfeil, B. A. Llewellyn, R. M. Milligan, M. D., Alpheus McKibben, M. D., W. L. Phipps, C. M. Barr, H. C. Miller, E. E. Wilbie, Charles C. McGovern and Joseph Painter.

Brown, former state senator and banker, convicted February 16 in the Federal District Court for misapplication of funds of the Fayette City National Bank and the First National Bank of Webster, of which institutions he was vice president, will be sentenced next Tuesday by Judge R. M. Gibson. His brother, Jesse R. Brown, who was a vice president of the Fayette City bank and a director of the Webster bank, will also be sentenced. Judge Gibson yesterday refused Guy Brown a new trial.

The accident happened as they were preparing to follow a moving van containing their household goods.

LESSING, BORN 200 YEARS AGO, GREAT DRAMATIC CRITIC, TO BE HONORED

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

LESSING'S name is not as familiar to our generation in America as it should be. The world is celebrating his two hundredth birthday, and next Sunday evening a famous German actor, Max Montor, is to give a reading of "Nathan the Wise" in North Side Carnegie Music Hall. So it may be well to pause for a moment in our headlong lives and ask who Lessing was anyway?

Well, his full name was Gotthold Ephraim Lessing, and he was the second greatest dramatic critic since the beginning of the world.

The first was a Greek gentleman named Aristotle, whose other claim to fame is that he was tutor to Alexander the Great.

We often hear a play referred to as a "vehicle." Now a vehicle is a conveyance that starts somewhere and takes you somewhere. That's what a well-made play ought to do, and so the word "vehicle" is peculiarly apt. And the great dramatic critic is he who understands the mechanism of the vehicle, as an automobile mechanic knows all the parts of his machine. The great critic can tell you why the play won't run—and that word "run" as applied to plays is another illustration of the aptness of the comparison with a wagon.

How Old Fritz Made Lessing

At the time Lessing was growing up into a great literary figure, Frederick the Great was king of Prussia. Fritz was a Hohenzollern, and a German, but he had a weakness for French literature—quite excusable, for Voltaire was writing French.

This had two unexpected results. In the first place, Frederick became one of the French classics. In the best collections of masterpieces of French literature, the letters of Frederick the Great are included along with those of Madame de Sevigne.

The other unexpected result was that Lessing became a dramatic critic. They needed a librarian for the Royal Library at Berlin. Lessing was the man for the position. But Frederick was reading a favorite French author at that time, and one of his adjutants had the same name as this Frenchman, though unrelated, so Frederick conferred the post of librarian on his adjutant's brother. Something in a name after all!

How He Wrote 'Nathan the Wise'

As a result Lessing went to the city of Hamburg, where as dramatic advisor of the theater, he wrote his "Hamburgische Dramaturgie," the finest book of dramatic criticism since Aristotle's "Poetics."

Lessing paved the way for Shakespeare on the Geman stage. And since Lessing's day Shakespeare has become the crowned monarch of the German theater.

This man Lessing, the greatest scholar of his time, and the keenest wit after Voltaire, also meddled in theology. His close friend was Moses Mendelssohn, a hunchbacked philosopher, who made the first and best blank verse translation of "To be or not to be" into German. And many years later this Mendelssohn's grandson wrote the well-known music for "Midsummer Night's Dream," which has furnished a wedding march almost as popular as that from "Lohengrin."

Meddling in theology in those days, was a sort of Donnybrook Fair. Lessing, being one of the first of the Higher Critics, soon got into hot water. He had so many facts at his command, and his pen was so formidable, that his opponents decided to get rid of him through the censor. Lessing was forbidden to publish anything more on this subject.

That led to the writing of "Nathan the Wise," noblest of all pleas for religious tolerance. It is a moving drama—and when I saw Max Pohl play it in Berlin two years ago, on his own 70th birthday, it proved a fine stage play as well.

Nathan is a benevolent old Jew—the scene is Jerusalem during the Crusades—the other hero of the drama is Sultan Saladin, known to us through Scott's "Talisman."

Saladin, to catch Nathan tripping, asks him which is the true religion. Nathan answers with the parable of the Three Rings. A father has a ring with the magical property of making its wearer beloved of all men. He has three sons. Each gets a ring—exactly alike. Each claims to have the genuine ring. The case comes before a wise judge, who sends them about their business. Let each wear his ring and await the result. By their fruits ye shall know them.

This drama, "Nathan the Wise," will be presented by Max Montor on Sunday evening as a public reading, with admission free to all. Students of drama, students of German, and admirers of Lessing will be interested.

SOME THESPIANS :-: WHO'LL BE HERE :-: IN NEW BILLS

Collette Ryan will be among those participating in the nocturnal frolics of "A Night in Venice," coming next week to the Alvin prior to an engagement on Broadway.

John Miljan and Beatrice Banyard in "The Voice of the City," which comes to the screen of the Penn. Willard Mack wrote it and acts in it.

Dolores Costello will be on the Stanley screen in "Glad Rag Doll," a film mixing talk and silence.

Alice Ann Baker, of the George Sharp Players, will have a good part in "Skidding," in the Pitt.

Enforcement Plan Of Dr. Kerr Adopted

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—(AP.)—The Presbyterian Board of Christian Education at its annual meeting yesterday adopted a paper presented by the Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, of Pittsburgh, president of the board, outlining a program of action for the next year in support of President Hoover's policy of law enforcement.

The board recommended to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, meeting in St. Paul May 23-29, that it take action to bring the full strength of the denomination to the support of this plan. The assembly is asked to name a committee to visit President Hoover and assure him of the support of the Presbyterian church in his stand for law enforcement. The board also recommended that Sunday, June 30, be nationally observed as Loyalty Sunday.

TUNES, MIRTH COMING TO STAGE

"A Night in Venice" opens a week's stay in the Alvin next Monday with the usual matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Among its features is "Cellini's Plate," in which eight living models are developed in the flesh from a tiny illusion on a silken gossamer.

"Skidding," next week's offering of the George Sharp Players at the Pitt Theater, was first produced in Pasadena, Cal. Nearly every Eastern theatrical manager had the manuscript on his desk at one time or another. After a year it still is on Broadway, one of the biggest hits of its type.

"The Voice of the City," Willard Mack's all-talking detective thriller, in which the author acts, will be heard on the screen of the Penn next week, May 6. The stage will "farewell" Teddy Joyce in "Say It With Flowers."

ONCE REAL SHOW GIRL

Dolores Costello is a show girl in "The Glad Rag Doll" which comes to the Stanley Monday. At one time Dolores was a show girl, being a featured dancer, with her sister Helene, in George White's "Scandals."

Cullen Landis, famous screen star, will appear in person in the Harris the first half of next week. Screen features include "Strange Cargo," an all-talking mystery drama.

Opening Sunday midnight, the Academy will present "Girls From the Follies," George Jaffe's own show, as the burlesque attraction. Gladys Clark and Sam Raynor are the featured players.

It is announced that "Show Boat" is in the Grand for an indefinite run.

EAST LIBERTY BILLS

Alice White comes to the Enright Saturday in a talking picture, "Hot Stuff," a story of college life.

James J. Corbett and Nell O'Brien will top the vaudeville in the Sheriday Square Theater the last half of this week. The screen feature will be "Girls Gone Wild," with Sue Carol and Nick Stuart in the stellar roles.

Lupe Velez and Gary Cooper come to the Regent Saturday in "The Wolf Song."

"Redskin," filmed partly in natural color, starring Richard Dix comes to the Liberty Saturday as the feature attraction.

Postal Tests Prior To Vacancy Approved

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—At the suggestion of Postmaster General Brown and with the approval of the civil service commission, President Hoover yesterday issued an executive order which will allow the examination for first, second and third-class postmaster applicants in anticipation of a vacancy.

The order also lowered the maximum age limit of applicants not in the postal service from 68 to 65 years, and declared that any person who has been in the service two years or more can take the examination for postmasterships regardless of age. Heretofore the civil service has not been allowed to give examinations for postmasters until a vacancy has occurred.

GOVERMENT CONTROL URGED IN MOST PLANS

A fresh inundation of last minute plans entered in the $25,000 temperance prize contest sponsored by William Randolph Hearst came yesterday at the national headquarters of the contest in the Hearst publications building, New York.

These plans, numbering 2,440, were received by the New York American alone during business hours yesterday, in the nation-wide contest conducted by the Hearst newspapers. Telegrams from the local temperance contest editors of these Hearst dailies indicated their offices had also received great masses of temperance contest mail in the last two days.

At New York, where the contest office was kept open until one o'clock yesterday morning, daylight saving time, or midnight, eastern standard time, when the contest closed, the final plan turned in by a contestant in person was received just thirty seconds before the contest officially ended. This plan was brought by Arthur P. Quinlan of Paterson, N. J., secretary-organizer of the Associated Silk Workers. All plans received during the day yesterday in New York were, of course, postmarked April 29 and 30.

NOTABLES ENTER

It will not be possible to announce the grand total of plans received by the Hearst newspapers conducting the contest before Saturday, but it is known to have gone beyond all previous expectations.

Among last minute entries received at New York were those from Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton University; Dr. John A. Harriss, former deputy police commissioner of New York in charge of traffic; Grace Hamblen, lawyer of New York; Simon Birmingham, chief of police of Union County, N. J.

C. W. Bennett of the Douglaston Laboratories at Douglaston, L. I., R. E. Gosnell, a newspaper legislative correspondent in the House of Commons Press Gallery at Ottawa, Canada; M. A. Johnson, registrar of the city of Roanoke, Va.; Capt. Hubert A. McMorrow, seventh coast artillery, U. S. A. Fort Tilden, N. Y.

First Lieut. G. L. Dewey, U. S. Army, West Point, N. Y.; Dr. J. Belmont Woodson, state senator of Virginia; James E. Maynard, past department commander of the United Spanish Army Veterans, U. S. A.; Lieut. K. N. Gardner, U. S. Navy, Chevy Chase, Md.; Lieut. Virgil F. Underwood, One Hundred and Eighth Cavalry, U. S. Army, Bogalusa, La.

Dr. Charles E. Kaufman, head master of the Colorado School for Deaf and Blind; Lieut. Col. Harold E. Hartney, former commanding officer of the first pursuit group of the U. S. Army air force in France; Oliver E. Pagan, special assistant attorney general, Department of Justice, Washington.

Judge O. H. E. Kramer, Corporation Court, San Antonio, Tex.; Harry Markson, city clerk of Elmira, N. Y.; L. C. Scott, president of the Commonwealth Adjustment Corporation, New York City; Francis X. Hennessey, eminent constitutional lawyer, New York.

Sir Joshua Thomas, Los Angeles, Cal.; George Westervelt, secretary of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, Inc., New York, the organization which defends gratis those arrested under the Jones act; Maj. Martin H. Fay, West Point graduate, who served in the air service over seas during the World War and after the armistice became inspector general.

MANY ARMY MEN

Maj. William M. Connor, judge advocate of the U. S. Army, Washington; Gabriel Wells, rare book collector, New York; Max Radin, professor of law, University of California; Commander J. S. McCain, Bureau of Navigation, U. S. N., Washington; Benjamin A. Morton, vice president of the Union Trust Company and Central Union Trust Company of New York.

Col. Ernest McCullough, U. S. Army; Maj. Edward H. Hicks, field artillery, U. S. Army; John Daniel Reak, president Americanization League, Chicago.

Gaston Liebert, former French consul general at New York and Hong Kong, and director of French Bureau of Public Information, 1923-24; Dr. Perrin H. Long, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research; G. G. Graves, government liquor vendor, Alberta, Canada; Robert M. Davis, advisory editor of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, New York, who submitted a notable plan in the Durant contest.

Arthur Gomez, state attorney, Florida; Lieut. Col. C. D. Ross, U. S. Army; Col. W. H. Pritchett, U. S. Marine Corps, Washington, D. C.

This list could be continued indefinitely, since thousands of the best known men and women in the United States have competed in the Hearst temperance contest.

U. S. CONTROL FAVORED

Continued examination of the plans submitted to editorial readers of the temperance contest committee at New York shows that entrants largely advocate:

1—Government manufacture and sale through licensed dispensaries of distilled liquors under rigid restrictions and of wines and beers under greatly lessened restrictions.

2—Government supervision over private dispensaries with restrictions similar to those mentioned above.

Only rarely has a plan suggested unrestricted sale of distilled liquor as well as of beers and wines. A large group wants intoxication liquor defined as anything in excess of a 21 per cent alcoholic content.

WHAT WOMEN SAY

The feminine attitude toward the prohibition question is mainly colored by personal observations, the debauchery of youth, the misbehavior of bridge-playing mothers and the general laxity of parents. Many mothers have large families of growing children and look upon moral sides of the results of wide-spread bootleggers and speakeasies.

A great majority of men expressed their distaste for hard liquors and desire for the availability of beers and wines for their meals.

Another curious fact is that hundreds have sent recipes and formulas to the Hearst newspapers for the home manufacture of wines and beers.

PITTSBURGHER SPEAKS

Michael Siersdorfer, Sr., of the H. J. Heinz Company, Pittsburgh, who entered a plan on the last day, said:

"After 24 years' travel in 29 countries, including Russia, Turkey and Egypt, I am sorry to say that I have seen more cases of intoxication in my native United States during the last year than I have seen in all of my lifetime of travel abroad."

Some queer names of American towns are to be found among the plans. Yellville, Ark., has been heard from. There may be significance in plans which came from Hop Bottom, Pa., and Brandywine, Md.

Of all the foreign countries Finland sent the largest number of plans in proportion to its population. This was believed due to the fact that Finland, with the sole exception of the United States, is the only civilized nation which has not repealed its prohibition laws.

Saved from Gallows 3 Times, Lifer Dies

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., May 2.—David Runion, 70, three times sentenced to die on the gallows at the State Prison here, died a natural death and will be taken back to his old home at Parkersburg for burial. He was serving a life sentence.

no dandruff

protect children

Children usually come home from school with a case of dandruff that may lead to baldness. They get it from contact with others; promiscuous use of combs, brushes and wash basins. For dandruff, being a germ condition, is highly infectious.

Examine scalps often, and at the first sign of dandruff, douse on Listerine full strength, which is powerful against germs.

Keep it up systematically for several days. To your delight, you will often find that your loose dandruff has disappeared and that little scalps are clean, sweet and healthy.

Simply Delighted
Experienced shavers are simply delighted with LISTERINE SHAVING CREAM. So cool. So refreshing.

While soothing and healing, full strength Listerine is so active, it kills even the Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) germs—200,000,000 of them in 15 seconds. This statement we can prove to the entire satisfaction of the medical profession. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo.

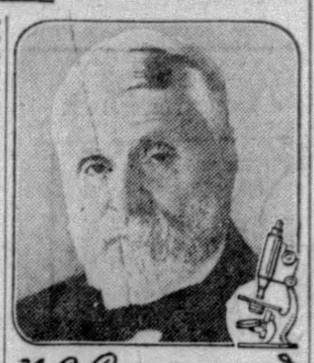
Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their systems. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.



W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.

BRODHEAD FETE PLANS SET

Plans for the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Brodhead expedition against the Indians of the upper Allegheny are being completed at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission in Harrisburg today.

The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania will sponsor the celebration here, according to action at the annual meeting of the society. The following officers were elected: President, William H. Stevenson, who begins his eighteenth successive term; vice presidents, Omar S. Decker, Gen. Albert J. Logan, A. B. Reid, and Albert Horne; secretary, Robert M. Ewing; treasurer, John E. Potter; librarian, Miss Emma D. Poole; directors, Robert Garland, Thomas S. Brown, Benjamin Thaw and James A. Henderson.

CITY HOSPITAL FURNITURE BIDS TO BE GIVEN 2 WAYS

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, welfare director, has advised Council that alternate bids will be invited today for the 186 units comprising the $140,000 worth of furniture for the City Home and Hospital.

Bidders would be asked to furnish proposals for a lump sum for all the items and to submit prices for each of the items.

Members of Council had objected to the department's first plan of taking bids only for the entire schedule on the ground that it would compel some dealers to buy many of the articles at added expense so as to include them in the proposal for the lot. The lump sum plan prevented open and free competition, it was said.

Mrs. Rauh said she had conferred with the law department and decided to ask for bids under both plans.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., May 2.—(AP.)—Sebastian Rocco, 29, shot and seriously wounded yesterday, according to police, by his landlady, Mrs. Bertha Williams.

Rocco, who was in arrears with his rent, packed his bag and was leaving the house when Mrs. Williams, showing a revolver, demanded her money. He grappled with her, and in the scuffle, Mrs. Williams told the police, the gun was discharged.

The bullet lodged in the man's body. Mrs. Williams was placed in the county jail pending the outcome of Rocco's injuries.

AND to think—only a few years ago no one at the office had brighter prospects. Promotion was just a glorious game in those days. And then something happened. Constipation blights many a bright career. It destroys initiative. It weakens the body and paves the way to disease. Yet constipation can be relieved—safely, promptly. It can be prevented! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to give relief—to bring prevention!

100% bran means 100% results

How fortunate that a delicious cereal like ALL-BRAN can do such a wonderful work! Doctors recommend it because it is 100% bran. They know that 100% bran means 100% results. Here is why:

As ALL-BRAN travels through the system, its bulk absorbs moisture. And it gently distends the intestines, purifying, removing wastes and poisons. ALL-BRAN is practically all-bulk—and so can do this work effectively. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is not sufficient.

Don't risk dangerous drugs

ALL-BRAN works as nature works. How different from habit-forming pills and drugs whose dose must be constantly increased—and which sometimes definitely injure you. Instead, a healthful, natural cereal. Serve it with milk or cream — and add fruits or honey, if you prefer.

Mix it with other cereals. Put it in soups. Use it in your cookery. Recipes on every package. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. You can do worlds of good for your family if you will see that they eat ALL-BRAN regularly.

But don't risk part-bran substitutes. Insist on Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. At all grocers. Served by hotels, restaurants, cafeterias. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Every Woman Fears

WHY can't a woman be frankly middle-aged?

Why does she feel panicky at the sight of the first gray hair or the first wrinkle? Why does she struggle frantically to hang onto youth?

A man has no such tragic sensations.

When he first espies that cluster of snow above his ears, it may give him a slight shock of surprise, but he is not in the least appalled. He is even a little pleased with himself. He feels that it makes him look "interesting." And "distinguished!"

HELEN ROWLAND

Catch HIM moving the mirror hastily back from the window!

Why does a woman with a few little smile-wrinkles around her eyes and a pleasantly plump figure feel a cold fear clutching at her heart every time she glances in the mirror?

Why does she feel almost apologetic when she chances to find herself in a group of flighty flappers and half-baked youths?

A MAN in the same group feels only stimulated and "pepped up" or amused or bored or superior, according to his mood. He never doubts for a moment that he could be any flapper's "ideal." Not he!

He thanks heaven that he is no "cake-eater."

Why does a woman send out an SOS to the beauty specialists, and rush out and torture her hair, wreck her health, have her face carved up and remodeled, and shatter her peace of mind, the moment she feels that middle age is about to set its finger upon her?

A man dreads growing OLD. He dreads the day when he will lose his teeth and his knee-kicks; when he may have to give up his business and most of his sports and pleasure. That is perfectly natural.

But he accepts, even welcomes, middle age as the fruitful time of his life; the time when he can relax and enjoy the rewards of his hard work. When he can take up golf, let out his waistband, dictate to younger men, and impress the world with his wisdom and importance and success.

Never for an instant does he doubt his personal charm, his perennial fascination for the fair sex—never, so long as he has the pep to hobble out and buy a necktie and a carnation for his buttonhole!

Women may have the ballot, wear knickerbockers, practice law and make a million dollars; but never will there be any real equality between the sexes, until she can learn to glory in her years as a man does!

Middle age is the caviar and wine of life. Why cling to the insipid chocolate sundae of youth? Don't take middle age as a punishment. Take it as a GIFT! "Take it on the chin," as a man does—and you'll never feel it!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Give Body a Chance to Regain Strength

MORE frequently this year than ever I have urged you to watch out if you have had a hard cold, the measles, whooping cough or influenza. It is a common thing to have a cough after one of these ailments. That is a remnant of the diseases and should not be neglected.

DR. COPELAND

The whole family rejoices after the patient has "recovered." He has been confined to the house so long it seems good to get him into the open. That is believed to be nature's way to complete the restoration of health.

But the trouble about it is, not every patient is willing and able to make the necessary efforts. The little walks in the sunshine, alternating with short naps, and the eating of plenty of nourishing food—these are essential to full return to health and vigor. But inclination to do these things is lacking.

It is not to be expected that one who has had a long sickness, with high fever and great prostration, can rush back to hard work. It is a mistake to do so.

Yet nobody wants to "loaf on the job," or to be "yellow." The fear of what one's associates may say or think is a spur to hard work before the body is prepared for it.

So the frail convalescent, wobbly on his feet and dizzy in the head, does not know what to do. He thinks he ought to go to work, but knows he does not feel able to do so.

The ambitious parent hates to have the child out of school a single day longer than absolutely necessary. The poor youngster, too weak to resist, goes to school a couple of weeks too soon.

Do not forget that it takes time to recover normal health after an acute illness. The system has been poisoned by the products of disease. The reserves of vitality have been exhausted. The nervous system does not react as it should. The heart is weakened from overwork during the high fever. The muscles are soft and flabby.

Time alone, aided by rest, sunshine and frequent small meals of nourishing food, can remove the effects of the disease. Even though you think it is wicked "to waste so much time," I beg of you to be sensible about the matter. You will be the winner in the long run.

May I say a word to the parents, too? Your child, who has had one of the contagious diseases of early life, must not be considered as on the way to full recovery until the scales show increasing weight.

There is sure to be loss of weight as a consequence of one of these attacks. At least, during the period of illness there will not be that gain of weight which children of growing age are expected to show. Until the scales give you a favorable response, don't hurry the child into hard work.

Similar advice should be followed by adults. Until the strength returns, don't begin to put in full time. You may do the easy part of your work provided it does not tire you. But take it easy for a while, certainly until the cough is gone.

Observation of these suggestions by every person who does not get up well after an illness will prevent many a case of tuberculosis. Please be sensible.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, May 3

THIS day's astrological forecast stresses dangers from fraud, slander, misrepresentation, sordidly directed against the worthy and sincere. If these can be circumvented there may be some advancement in industry, but generally the state of affairs is treacherous, excepting that a beam from Venus helps in matters of purely personal nature. Sign all manner of writings with great caution. Guard the speech.

Those whose birthday it is are at the door of a year calling for the utmost protection against fraud, slander, misrepresentation and malice. In every business activity these should be guarded against. Happier and worthier conditions may obtain in personal affiliations.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be industrious, fair, just and kindly, but an inclination to distorted views and exaggerated or inaccurate speech may provoke much trouble and inharmony in its life.

WAYSIDE FLOWERS

Drawn By Dorothy Flack

THE loveliest of all flowers—those that you see gaily nodding their pretty heads by the wayside. No hothouse care for them—they just seem to spring into beauty overnight. And ruthless hands pull and pluck them from their native soil and try to transplant them into the sheltered gardens where every care and attention is showered on them—but what happens? They droop and die!

So when you see a bevy of wayside flowers laughing and calling to you, let them be. Don't pluck them and carry them far away to die. Let them stay where they're happiest and most lovely, so that all may see and enjoy their beauty.

They're just like some mistaken Love. Love that takes its beloved and carries it far away and hides him or her so that no one else may see the loveliness and beauty. And what happens then? Love fades and dies and the Beloved withers and fades and it's all over.

So don't be selfish! Let your Beloved enjoy the sunshine and beauty of her natural environment. Let everyone who may see and love her as you do, for in this way Love will ever remain a welcome guest on your hearth instead of a tyrant that is hated.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

Prince Georges and Charles Owen Hold Conference

PRINCESS OLINA swung round facing me in astonishment as I asked her how she knew that Prince Georges meant to bribe Charles Owen not to reveal her whereabouts to the Transvanian court.

"Didn't you hear him?" she queried. "Oh, I forgot," apologetically. "You don't understand Greek, and they were both speaking in that language.

"Mr. Owens speaks Greek?" I asked.

"Perfectly," she answered. "That is why I thought his name could not be 'Owen.' It was a Greek name he bore when I—knew—of—him, and we always thought he was a native of that country."

I put aside the revelation with its possible bearing upon Lillian's association with the Brixtons for future consideration. Just now I was concerned only with the interview going on behind the closed door of the library, and what she had just told me excited what Lillian with affectionate raillery calls my "Sherlockian nose."

"Would you mind translating for me just what Prince Georges said and Mr. Owens answered?" I asked.

Her forehead wrinkled in application to the request, and after a moment she replied, haltingly:

"It is an idiomatic form—what Georges said, but as nearly as I can say it in English, it would be —'Well! it's "how much?" I suppose, and the man's answer was 'So you—' I can't translate it, but it's the same as if he said in American, 'So you acknowledge the corn' or 'throw up the sponge,' you know."

I nodded assent and fitted my mental puzzle picture pieces together before I spoke. Then I answered her troubled look with a reassuring smile.

"You will see that Prince Georges will not pay that man a single cent," I told her, "I do not know the language in which they spoke, but I do know tones—I have made it my business to interpret them for years, and Prince Georges' voice held only one thing, mockery. His words were a taunt, nothing less, while the man's answer was of course only the defiance of bravado."

"You may be right,' Princess Olina said doubtfully. "I wish I could believe as you do. But I know Georges' generosity and recklessness."

"I do not think you realize his ability,' I said. "Now, I do not wish to ask you needless questions, but I should like to know one thing. In our American parlance, hasn't Prince Georges something 'on' Mr. Owen?"

She hesitated for a second, then answered frankly:

"Yes, he has, although I do not know just what it is. One thing I do know, however. This man —Owen—or whatever his real name is—cannot come into either Trees of Transvania."

I jotted that interesting fact down in my mental files before making any oral comment.

"I do not think you have the least cause for worry," I said. "If I read Prince Georges rightly, he will make this man afraid to send any message whatever to your mother, no matter how cleverly concealed its source. So wipe that worried look off your face before you come into the living room. There is no use in letting any of the others know anything about this."

She straightened herself as if I had flicked her with a whiplash, for she had the well-bred woman's horror of letting outsiders know of her affairs.

"Of course," she said breathlessly. "Let us go quickly."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Guest of Honor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am planning a luncheon to be given in a tearoom downtown for a group of clubwomen. Would it be proper for me to invite our president to be honor guest and to speak?

2. Where should she sit at the table? I have never been to her home nor has she been to mine, although we have been members of the same club for a number of years.

3. Would it be all right for the hostess to participate in the program? There will be music and reading.

4. How should a professional woman be addressed in private. For instance, how should a pupil address his or her teacher?

5. In letters should one's teacher be addressed as "Madame?"

YOUNG MATRON.

YES, this would be a charming gesture—by all means do it.

2. As the guest of honor, she should sit on your right. As you assign her place, I suggest that you make this assignment even more charming by saying, "Mrs. Hall, will you please take the place at my right?" This will indicate to her very definitely that she is the guest of honor.

3. Yes—a moderate amount.

4. By the formal name—"Miss Allington," "Mrs. Stedman," or "Mr. Underwood."

5. No. This is unnecessarily—and, I think, unattractively—formal and business-like. Use "Dear Mrs. Alexander," or "Dear Mr. Wainwright."

And may I add one more thing? Please don't use the terrible green writing-paper that you used in your letter to me. Your letter is so charming and friendly, it deserves a better frame.

Refreshments

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When friends come in for the evening, should a lunch be served?

INTERESTED READER.

IF you wish. Usually the hostess who prides herself on her hospitality has on hand some sort of "snack" in the family cupboard or refrigerator and some kind of drink on the ice to serve to the guest who happens in, either by appointment or casually.

ICE MERGER FIRM TAKES ON 5 PITTSBURGH COMPANIES

Through a deal involving $2,500,000 five ice companies here, in which John W. Hubbard was the dominant stockholder, have been sold to City Ice and Fuel Company, of Cleveland, a nationwide concern, considered the strongest of its kind in the world. Announcement of the sale was confirmed today.

By the sale the City Ice and Fuel Company gains control of the Pittsburgh Ice Company, the East Pittsburgh Ice Company, the Union Ice Company, the Hilltop Ice Company, the Wilkinsburg Ice Company and the Hubbard Ice Cream Company. The last two companies are also distributors of coal.

Hubbard is to retain his connection with the concerns, and there will be no changes in other personnel, it was announced. The plants involved are all modern and have an annual sales volume of between 140,000 and 150,000 tons of ice.

The City Ice and Fuel Company operates plants in many states, from Texas to the Atlantic coast, but the deal here marked its initial entrance into Pennsylvania. It was indicated that the Pittsburgh acquisition would be the nucleus for expansion throughout the state.

A Tribute to a GREAT TALKING PICTURE!

BY Willard Mack

"THE VOICE OF THE CITY is better as a picture than the same story could possibly have been as a play because it does in dialogue exactly what the play could do; and in construction things that the play could not do. Here is a story that could be done in any medium, and the talking picture which the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company has made proves without doubt that this type of entertainment can be superior to any other type of entertainment the public could see. I say this with all the conviction of a man who has devoted thirty years of his life to the theatre."

STRAWBERRY WAY ACTION TO BE DELAYED 2 WEEKS

Council has deferred for at least two weeks action on an ordinance widening Strawberry way between Bigelow boulevard and a point where a connection could be made with Ninth street. The measure proposes giving the alley a 40-foot roadway and two 10-foot sidewalks at an estimated cost of $1,500,000.

Sponsors of the measure, appearing at a hearing before Council yesterday, declared the widening was imperative to relieve present traffic congestion in the downtown triangle. The situation will become more acute, they said, when the Koppers Building is occupied and when the proposed postoffice, the Gulf Refining Company Building and the Bell Telephone Building are completed.

The hearing developed that the Duquesne Club is planning a $1,000,000 building that will abut on Strawberry way.

The widening was urged by the Better Traffic Committee, representatives of downtown department stores, the Duquesne Club and the Business Men's Association of the East North Side.

Council declined to act until a hearing can be granted to the Citizens Committee on City Plan, which opposes the widening.

KERR, LUMBER DEALER, DIES

John B. Kerr, 76, lumberman and civic leader of Homestead for more than 50 years, was found dead in bed this morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. C. Elliott, 364 Atwood street, Oakland, where he resided. Mr. Kerr was a member of the firm of Kerr & Ingram.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, when Mrs. Elliott failed to receive response to the usual morning call, she entered his room and found him dead. Funeral services will be conducted from the Atwood street address Saturday afternoon, and interment will be made in Homestead Cemetery.

The New Way To Remove Corns. Japanese Method—Don't Hurt a Bit

Just a Touch Stops Soreness, Then the Corn or Callous Shrivels and Lifts Off. Try It. Your Feet Will Feel Cool and Fine.

Thanks to a new discovery made from a Japanese Product your foot troubles can be quickly ended.

Ice-Mint, as this new preparation is called, is said to shrivel up hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes so that they can be lifted out easily with the fingers. It's wonderful.

Think of it: just a little touch of that delightful, cooling, soothing Ice-Mint, and real foot joy is yours. No matter how old or tough your pet corn is he will shrivel up and you can pick him out after a few nights' use of Ice-Mint. No pain, not a bit of soreness either when applying it or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

If your feet are inclined to swell or puff, or if you have cracked or bleeding toes, it will draw the inflammation out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the real Japanese secret for fine healthy little feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and men who have to stand on their feet all day.

No more tired, aching or burning feet—no more foot trouble. Ice-Mint will make your feet feel so cool and fine that you will sigh with relief. It is now selling like "Wildfire" here. Just ask in any drug store for a little Ice-Mint and give your poor suffering, tired feet the treat of their lives. There is nothing better, nor anything just as good.

Clotning valued at $200 was taken from the home of James De Luca, 154 Pearl street. From the home of H. E. Gustalson, 7325 Frankstown avenue, jewelry valued at $75 was stolen.

E. J. Somers, of Detroit, reported that sample clothing valued at $200 was taken from his auto on the city wharf. E. M. McDonald, of Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport, reported theft of clothing and luggage valued at $215 from his car at Tenth street and Penn avenue.

While Lillian Rosenthal, of 400 Independence street, was in a downtown theater a thief stole her purse and $5, Miss Rosenthal told police.

The team will compete at California State Normal School for the Western Pennsylvania championship, and if successful there will enter the state finals at Harrisburg.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was centered over Texas yesterday morning advanced to the lower Ohio valley and developed into a storm of marked intensity. The disturbance covers practically the entire country east of the Mississippi River. Lowest barometer is 29.30 inches, at Evansville. It is producing showers and thunderstorms nearly everywhere east of the Mississippi. The rains are light, generally, but heavy in some localities.

A rather weak high pressure area covers the Plains states, the principal crest being over Colorado and New Mexico. The high is attended by clear skies, generally, and moderately cold weather. Frosts and freezing temperatures occurred at many places in the plains.

Another low pressure area appears in the far Northwest.

River Conditions.

The rainfall over the upper rivers was very light. The rivers are falling everywhere. Stage at Franklin, 5.6 feet; Lock No. 7, 12.8; Pittsburgh, 15.4; Dam No. 2, 6.9; Dam No. 6, 13.9; Dam No. 9, 14.4; Dam No. 12, 13.5. The rivers will continue to fall.

Famous Trans-Atlantic pilot-Walter Hinton uses only Amoco-Gas!

NO matter how many flights have been made across the Atlantic--no matter how many may be made in the future--nothing will ever blot from the pages of history the names of the real pioneers--Lieut. Walter Hinton and his associates of the U. S. Navy who were the first to pilot an airplane from one continent to the other.

Today Lieut. Hinton maintains his interest in aviation--conducting an aviation school in Washington. A man who ventured to fly the Atlantic at a time when the airplane was far from its present development knows and appreciates the importance of uniformity, dependability in motor fuels--and you'll find that he selects the fuel for his motor car with the same care as he chooses the fuel for his airplane.

And--AMOCO-GAS, the Original Special Motor Fuel, is the choice of this pioneer of the air-lanes between America and Europe!

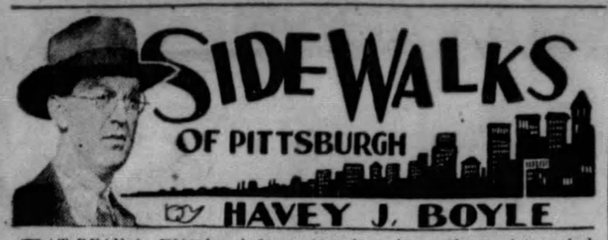
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

THURSDAY, MAY 2, 1929

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

MINISTERIAL STUDENT DISAPPEARS HERE

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

PAT RYAN, in Pittsburgh for a stay, is perhaps the most traveled newsboy in the world. He is 35 and since he was 15 he's been traveling around the world, making his way on land by selling newspapers, earning his passage at sea by serving in the engine room, scrubbing decks or acting as cabin boy.

The startled citizens of Bombay and Calcutta, Cairo and Shanghai, Paris and London, have heard his clarion appeal to read about the Big Murder Mystery.

At present he is calling out the headlines appearing in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph—and with old-fashioned newsboy gusto.

In China no one knew what he was yelling, but he carried two boys with him, accoutred with banners telling in Chinese what the headlines said, and, yelling at the top of his voice, Pat would point to the banners carried by his assistants.

NEWSBOYS, too, are sometimes expert judges of news. One time in Louisville, Pat Ryan scorned the headlines of page one, folded his Courier-Journal in a way that showed the lead editorial, and shouted: "Read all about Col. Henry Watterson's greatest editorial." He likes to recall how an aged gentleman approached him and purchased one of the papers, tendering a dollar and telling Pat to keep the change. And a little later Pat was summoned to the office of Col. Watterson and there met the man, Col. Watterson, who had purchased his own paper for a dollar.

What stories are sure fire hits for a heavy street sale? Pat will tell you quickly: "The execution of a famous murderer; the disappearance of Lindbergh; the knockout of a heavyweight title holder." Pat knows his groceries. He was among the first to yell: "Whoopee McGurk Captured."

ABOUT the precise second when the radio broadcaster says: "When the gong strikes it will be exactly 31 minutes and 15 seconds past 11 o'clock," the average listener turns his dial for something more interesting that the time. But not all listeners. There are many men in the city with whom the exact time is a fetish, a hobby, and sometimes a phobia.

Walk into any well-known jewelry store in town and watch the proceedings to discover how some men are concerned about time. There are watch owners who complain if their watch loses or gains a half a minute in a month. There is a prominent man in Pittsburgh who has kept a record of his watch since January (he keeps it on a typewritten sheet) and his report shows his watch has lost exactly eight seconds in these four months.

There are men who pay daily visits, weekly visits and monthly visits to their watch repairer to have their watches adjusted when less than a half-minute is concerned.

AS ONE who neglects to wind his watch for days at a time this attention to split-seconds is amazing. The clerk in the jewelry store, by the way, says not only railroad engineers and men in whose work time is an important factor come in, but in many cases the anxious ones are men who do not work at all and who apparently have no other place to go than to a jewelry store.

Incidentally, the watch repairmen never get out of patience with the customers dealing in minute exactitude. Rather, they take pride in keeping the watches under their care within a second or so of the official observatory time. There is no charge for having a watch regulated.

"You remember me," said the voice over the 'phone, as the name was given. "Yes," I lied. "It is important that I see you at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning." He gave the address. I was on hand at the appointed hour. I did not know him. He was in the throes of remorse. "I do strange things when I drink," he said. "There is nothing I want to see you about at all."

Of 4,895,765 names in the telephone book he would have to run through the B's. He is a prominent business man. His secret is safe.

Wife's Affections Divided, He Says, Sues

His wife, Pauline, told his relatives she had a lover in Hungary, she uttered threats against his life and threw heavy cans at him, humiliating him and driving away customers by her insults in stores he conducted on Semple street, Oakland, Johnstown and Philadelphia, Harry Galatzer alleged in a bill of particulars filed yesterday in Common Pleas Court in his divorce action.

QUIZ PROMISED IN POLICE ROW

Councilman Michael J. Verosky, of Braddock, will instigate a councilmanic investigation of the borough's police force if his personal investigation now under way reveals irregularities in the conduct of the department, he announced today.

His announcement was made as he checked on the many versions of the free-for-all battle staged in the police station yesterday morning by members of the police force.

Charges that the brawl, during which Police Chief Michael Pipko is alleged to have struck Lieut. Edward Goldstein, had its origin in a controversy over vice raids on the borough will be investigated, Councilman Verosky stated.

Several versions of the fight and reports that two raids made by Chief Pipko preceded the police-station fight are being circulated.

From outward appearances at the police station all is serene today. All members of the force are back on duty except Chief Pipko, and he is said to be due back today.

He is to face a disorderly conduct charge, according to Burgess William Callahan, but as in the other angles of the case no records of a charge appears on official dockets.

The councilmanic meeting at which the matter may be brought to official light is the next regular session, scheduled for next Tuesday.

CHILDREN GIVE 'HEALTH PLAY'

"Mother Goose's Children" a health play, was given by the children of the Bane Public School, in the school auditorium, Fernleaf and Eccles streets, yesterday afternoon. The play was held in connection with Child Health Day which was observed in all schools throughout Allegheny County yesterday. Twenty-two pupils took part in the playlet which was under the direction of Miss Ella J. Coughlin, dramatic instructor; and Miss Elma Noble, physical director.

The parts portrayed were: Mother Goose, Jack and Jill, Miss Muffet, Dr. Foster, The Old Woman who lived in a shoe, her eight children, Simple Simon, Little Boy Blue, Jack Horner, Bo Peep, Tom the Piper's Son, Tommy Tucker, Humpty Dumpty, and Peter Piper.

Steve's Forfeit Of $10 to Be Doled Out

Steve Brousky, of Hays, appeared before Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead, on a drunkenness charge last night.

"I haven't the heart to fine you," said the burgess, "but I haven't the heart to give you back your $10 forfeit, either, for if I did you'd be back here tomorrow night.

"Steve," said the burgess, "I shall return your $10, but you are not going to get drunk on it. You will visit this station every night for the next 10 nights, and each night you will receive $1."

HIT BY POLE, SKULL HURT

Edward Straw, 50, of 554 Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, an excavator, is in the South Side Hospital in a serious condition suffering a probable fracture of the skull, which he received when a telegraph pole fell on him in Dormont yesterday.

Mr. Straw, excavating for a new garage to be built on West Liberty and Dormont avenues, was unconscious for more than two hours after the accident. He was rushed to the hospital in a machine of one of his employes with the aid of Motorcycle Patrolman Ralph Miller of the Dormont police department. He was immediately taken to the operating room, where he regained consciousness.

POLICE OF TWO STATES SEEK OHIO BOY

Pittsburgh police today joined the search in two states for Marvin Rife, 20-year-old ministerial student of Wooster (O.) College, who mysteriously disappeared here Saturday afternoon.

Rife came here last Friday, police learned, to call on Janet Hobson, Perry High School student, of 2426 Delaware avenue, North Side. He spent Friday night at the home of Janet's uncle, Walter Mears, 2215 Holyoke street.

Saturday afternoon, Rife and Janet went to a movie, it was learned. He accompanied her home and left about 5 p. m. to go to a downtown hotel for his suitcase, preparatory to returning to Wooster.

COMPLAINED OF ILLNESS

He failed to reach Wooster, Dr. J. M. Vance, dean of men at the college informed police here today.

Rife had complained of feeling ill Monday night, but apparently had recovered Saturday morning.

Parents of the missing youth, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rife, of Marion, O., were reported on their way here by automobile, accompanied by his schoolmate, Dwight Ramage, of Bellevernon, Pa., to aid in the search.

MINISTERIAL STUDENT

The missing student is a sophomore at Wooster, according to Dean Vance, and on completion of his course will enter a theological seminary to study for the Presbyterian ministry.

Bernice Collins, of 217 Lafayette street, North Side, a friend of Miss Hobson, is a classmate of Rife at Wooster. The missing student is described as 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 168 pounds, and with dark hair and brown eyes.

WILL REOPEN ST. LUKES

Religious services will be resumed in the oldest church west of the Alleghenies Sunday, June 8, when the Pittsburgh Episcopal diocese will direct the re-opening of St. Luke's of Chartiers on the Washington pike near Woodville. The services will be held in the afternoon and on each Sunday there will be a pilgrimage from one of the parishes in the diocese. St. Luke's is adjacent to Mt. Lebanon and many of the members of St. Paul's of Mt. Lebanon are joining with members of the Episcopal denomination in Carnegie in reviving interest in the historic parish.

St. Luke's was established before the Revolutionary war and its early communicants carried their muskets when they attended worship. The Rev. Warren C. Herrick, rector of St. Paul's, will officiate at one of the early services.

OFFER OF FREE RADIOS ASTOUNDS PITTSBURGH

A free radio set seems impossible.

But a free radio set IS possible through the far-seeing outlook of two of Pittsburgh's largest public organizations.

An eight-tube, $138.50 Atwater Kent receiver with an electro-dynamic loud speaker, self contained, is the set picked for this public-spirited gift to the people.

And not one, but many hundreds of these radios are available to the public!

The Sun-Telegraph and the Stanley-Warner Brothers theaters have found the only possible way this can now be accomplished.

PLAN IS GREETED

The plan has been greeted with instantaneous and hearty applause by educators, public officials, businessmen, parents, teachers and school children.

Schools in Pittsburgh, Carnegie, Crafton, Homestead, McKees Rocks, Brookline, Hannatown, Monongahela, Turtle Creek, Washington, Pricedale, Beaver Falls, Bentleyville, Fayette City and other municipalities are rivaling each other to help this campaign along.

The Sun-Telegraph and the Stanley-Warner Brothers' theaters are offering a free radio to every school or schoolroom which obtains 125 new 13-week subscriptions.

SPONSOR CAMPAIGN

Business firms are helping the campaign along by enclosing these subscription blanks in their delivery packages. Donahoe's, Huller Baking Company, United Laundries are among such firms.

In New Kensington, the local theaters and Cooper Brothers musical stores, have undertaken to sponsor the campaign locally.

The radios are ready for installation and will be placed scientifically in the proper location for receiving purposes in each room.

Subscription blanks may be obtained from the Stanley theaters, from the Sun-Telegraph and from a large number of school children.

Banquet

CHARLES C. GUENTHER — Mr. Guenther, past grand worthy president, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and member of Allegheny Aerie, who is chairman for the banquet May 11, Fort Pitt Hotel, in honor of Edward J. Ryan, Philadelphia, grand worthy president of the Eagles.

Sidelights

BOSTON, May 2.

See in Washington dispatches that the Democrats are planning to take the anti-prohibition side and make a direct issue of prohibition in '32.

Why a man should dig his grave three years before he is buried is almost unexplainable.

I spent three years in 48 states each season kidding and joking on both sides of prohibition, and if you think this country is wet, you got a big city angle on a nation that is composed of country folks.

It's the only law we ever had where the small town and country know they hold the trump card. You can't change it without their permission, and you won't get it. They are just laughing at you.

Yours, WILL.

BUCS-CARDS BATTLE CALLED OFF

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Tie Is Almost Costly.
Hemsley's Close Call.
Double-Headers Grow.
Big Score Not Record.
Rice "Catch" Repeated.
All-Around Luminaries.

BUCS WOULD HAVE MISSED CATCHER

THERE'S a great deal more satisfaction in coming out with a tie than with a defeat. It was gratifying, too, to have both Jim Stroner and Harry Riconda come through with pinch safeties that tied the score in the ninth yesterday, when in 11 previous instances this spring Pirate pinch batters had delivered only one hit, and there was a thrill in the bulletin that George Grantham had saved the game by cutting down Frankie Frisch at the plate in the twelfth inning and shutting off what would have been the winning run for the Cardinals.

Ralston Hemsley.

But much of the kick that Pirate rooters otherwise would have got out of the result would have been offset if the injury to Ralston Hemsley had been serious. The incapacitation of Hemsley and Burleigh Grimes in two successive games made the St. Louis trip a costly one.

But fortunately Hemsley's injury is not as serious as at first reported. His foot was more bruised than gashed by Frisch's spikes, and he will be able to work again in Boston on Saturday. With today's Cardinal game postponed, and the using of a less valuable catcher possible in tomorrow's exhibition bout with the Yankees here, Hemsley's service will not be lost for a single championship contest.

All of which is a lucky break for the Pirates. The loss of the young catcher's services would have been a hard blow. For the work of Charley Hargreaves thus far has been decidedly off color and unless the former Brooklyn backstop takes a huge brace immediately Hemsley is likely to be missed to an extent that may put the team in even a deeper rut than it has been in since the season opened. The Pirates surely are having more than their share of hard luck in the early stages of the race.

IT WAS an odd coincidence that the only other game played in the National League yesterday, that between the Reds and Cubs, also resulted in a tie, in the same number of innings, 13, and by the same score, 4 all. Last year, the Pirates did not participate in a tie game, but in 1927 they played two.

With two tie games and more postponements added to the list of future play-offs, developments of yesterday and today made quite a contribution to the growing crop of double-headers. There isn't a club in either league now that hasn't a postponed game to play off. Detroit was the only team in the big show that had played every scheduled game, but the Tigers finally were halted by rain in Chicago yesterday.

IF YOU want to form an idea as to how valuable Burleigh Grimes is to the Pittsburgh club and how great a loss it is to be deprived of his servines, just take a glance at some of his records for last year, as compared with the marks of other National League hurlers.

He pitched in more games than any other finger, 48; he pitched more innings than any other slabman, 331; he pitched to the greatest number of batsman, 1,377; tied with Benton for leadership in number of games won, 25, and in number of complete games pitched, 28, and tied Vance, Blake, McWeeny and Lucas in number of shutouts, four.

Burleigh Grimes.

IN BURYING the Red Sox under a landslide of 24 runs, resulting from 29 hits yesterday, the Athletics did not break any major league records, ancient or modern, though they approached the standing marks for the period dating back in 1900. The all-time record for hits is 36, made by Philadelphia against Louisville in the National League, August 17, 1894. Records since 1900 are 31 in the National League, set by New York against Cincinnati, June 9, 1901, and 30 in the American League, set by New York against Boston, September 28, 1923. The all-time record for runs also is 36, set by Chicago against Louisville in the National League, June 29, 1897. The records since 1900 are 27 in the American League, made by Cleveland against Boston, July 7, 1923, and 26 in the National League, set by Cincinnati against Boston, June 4, 1916, and equalled by Chicago against Philadelphia, August 25, 1922. As late as July 29, last year, Cleveland defeated New York, 24 to 6, the Indians making 27 hits. Nor did Al Simmons, who tied with Jimmy Foxx for the distincton of being the first major leaguer to make five hits in a game this year, break any records yesterday in connecting for a home run and a single in one inning. Our own Bill Regan, of the Red Sox, made two homers against Pitchers Blankenship and Connally, of the White Sox, in one inning on June 16, last year, and the same record has been made by Hack Wilson, Ken Williams and five players of the old days including Jake Stenzel, a Pirate, in 1894. The record for hits in one inning is three, set in 1883 by Tom Burns, of the Chicago Nationals, who made a homer and two doubles. The feat of two men on one club making five hits in a game, as Simmons and Foxx did yesterday, is not a record, either. Babe Ruth and Wally Schang, of the Yankees, were the latest to do it, prior to yesterday. Each hit safely five times against the Red Sox on September 28, 1923.

BACK in the world series of 1925, while the Pirates were playing in Washington, Sam Rice, center fielder for the Senators, won the distinction of being the only player who ever caught a home run. Every fair-minded spectator admitted that Earl Smith was entitled to a homer on his drive, and that Rice must have picked up the ball after tumbling over the short fence in front of the center field bleachers, but Umpire Cy Rigler ruled it a fair catch and allowed the putout.

Not until 1929 did a parallel case develop. Singularly, the outfielder in this instance bears the same family name and plays the same position as the one in the first. He is Harry Rice, of the Cleveland club. With two out in the ninth inning, two Cleveland runners on the bases and the score standing 7 to 6 in Detroit's favor in the opening game at Tigertown last week, Harry claimed a catch on a ball that appeared to have got away from him, just as Sam did against Pittsburgh.

AND this claim, too, was allowed by the umpires, ending the game, but the Cleveland club is still kicking on the decision, charging that Rice did not catch the ball and that if it had been ruled safe enough runs would have come in on it to give Cleveland the game.

Roger Peckinpaugh.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, of the Indians, in continuing his protest, offers the same argument that Stuffy McInnis put forward after the Earl Smith-Sam Rice incident. "When a fielder tumbles over a fence and catches a ball fairly his first act upon rising is to hold his hand high in the air showing that he has the ball," said Stuffy. "He does it instinctively. Sam Rice failed to do so, and that's enough to convince any baseball man that he never caught that ball."

PECKINPAUGH, in insisting that Harry Rice did not catch the disputed fly of last week, propounds the same question that McInnis asked the world. "What," he queries, "does an outfielder always do when he makes a doubtful catch such as Rice pulled on

PIRATES FIGHT REDBIRDS TO 13-INNING TIE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Rain necessitated the calling off of the Pirates-Cardinals game scheduled at Forbes Field today, and the day of rest was thoroughly appreciated by the athletes, who battled to a 4-4 deadlock in 13 innings in St. Louis yesterday and who topped off the grueling battle with an overnight dash to Pittsburgh.

The postponed contest is to be played on July 3, an open date on the schedule of both clubs.

A heroic number by George Grantham and Rolly Hemsley with two out in the twelfth stopped the winning run at the plate yesterday while the tense and shouting St. Louis fans were in the act of rushing on the field with that fine feeling of victory. Grantham's rifle-like throw to the young catcher, cutting down the fleet Frisch as he tried to register from second on Hafey's vicious hit, constituted a fine piece of fielding on both ends. Hemsley being injured on the left ankle as Fordham Frank dove into the plate, Rolly was assisted off the eld with a cut on his leg, but the wound was given prompt attention and the youngster probably will be ready to resume his post in a day or two.

DARKNESS HALTS ACT

The umpire didn't act much too soon in stopping the game. Darkness was enveloping the field as the home hitters swung in their half of the thirteenth. The various batters seemed to have a hard time seeing the ball. At the conclusion of the round, The three umpires held a consultation at the plate. Apparently they agreed to try to complete another inning, so the Redbirds hurried to their places. Some of the players evidently began to complain of the darkness and it is a fact that the shadows of night were falling so fast that to attempt another round seemed foolish. The umpires then decided that the better part of judgment was to stop the fight. So the game was called.

Rain started to fall about this time and most of athletes were well-soaked before they boarded their train at Bremen avenue, there being no station at this point.

The last game of the series was loaded with thrilling moments, but from the Pirate standpoint, the Pittsburgh rally in the ninth and the great play put over by Grantham and Hemsley in the twelfth were the real high spots.

TIE IN NINTH

Beaten by two runs as they entered the ninth, the Pirates seemed to be all washed up for the day, more than one Pittsburgher thinking that the "rubber" game was just about gone. Donie Bush, however, made a judicious choice of emergency men in the last regulation round, Jim Stroner and Harry Riconda coming through with a pair of hits that forced a deadlock in the nick of time.

The appearance of Cicero Jim at the plate in the big ninth marked the major league debut of the lad, and what a debut it was for him. A moment before he struck his convincing blow he was in a jam with Wee Willie Sherdel, the quick-delivery artist, who used his famed "sneak pitch" in an effort to erase Jim. The youngster was on the alert and what he did to that "sneaker" was just too bad.

Daredevil Dick Bartell was the first Pittsburgh hitter in the inning and Dick came through with a single. Rolly Hemsley lined to Orsatti and the Redbirds figured they were about ready to fly to their coop with another success with only two putouts between them and the desired goal.

Stroner went up to swing for Steve Swetonic, who had relieved Carmen Hill in the fifth inning.

JIM NOT FOOLED

Jim wasn't at the plate long before Oil Smith and Sherdel had two strikes on him. He also had a ball when Sherdel resorted to the pitch that is permitted in the National League, but banned in the American, and which brought about a high spot in the last game of the most recent world series. On that occasion Babe Ruth hit an important homer after the umpires had refused to allow the quick-delivery served by Wee Willie.

Sherdel apparently thought the newcomer was off his guard when he grabbed Smith's return quickly and let fly with one in the groove. Stroner put a fine trade mark on the ball, his hot liner tearing up the grass of right field as Orsatti tried to stop it. The Italian kid fumbled the hit and Bartell tallied as Cicero Jim wheeled to third with the tying run. With Coburn Jones due to swing, Bush made two quick changes. He sent Comorosky out to run for Stroner and Riconda batted for Jones. Harry came through with a single to tie up the battle. True, the hit was not a solid drive, but the break was appreciated by the Buccos. Como-

Young Local Star in Main Bout Debut

BUCK M'TIERNAN

Young welterweight boxer, of Swissvale, former amateur star, who makes his first appearance in a professional main bout against Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, in the Moose Temple ring tomorrow night. Looks like a college student or a snappy young business man in his street clothes, doesn't he?

FINE BOXING FORM

There is a smooth preciseness about the manner in which the 20-year-old McTiernan shapes up in the ring. He is boxing class all over, as the action pictures of him attest. And there is a facial resemblance in the closeup to Baby Face Jimmy McLarnin, the lightweight star.

HIS RIGHT

M'TIERNAN OWN MOST SEVERE CRITIC

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

"I'd like to see some GOOD fighters in action."

Jack (Buck) McTiernan, local 152-pound ring star, a visitor to the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, said this rather wistfully.

"Take a look in a mirror the next time you go into action," I suggested.

The 20-year-old marvel blushed in embarrassment.

"That's what everybody says," he confessed. "Everybody tells me I am a good fighter, but I don't know. I'm just a beginner. I wish I were sure I'm as good in there as they tell me I am."

McTiernan makes his bow as a main bout performer in the feature event of the weekly show in the Moose Temple tomorrow night against Mickey Solmen, of New Castle. He has the honor of topping just about the best card of the season in this section, for, in the semi-final, Charley Wolfe (they ought to call him Curly Wolf), of Rochester, Pa., meets Johnny Pial, of Oil City, while U. S. Carpentier clashes with a New Kensington rival, Ken Hargrave, and Jess Hoak, of McKeesport, opposes Joe Corelli, of Erie, in the preliminaries.

The bout will mark McTiernan's first appearance in an event of more than six rounds.

ANXIOUS TO LEARN

Somehow, when he is in the ring, McTiernan's actions give one the impression that he is imbued with the idea that he is the complete master of his opponent, so sure is he of every movement, but outside the ropes he is just the opposite. Soft-spoken and boyish, and skeptical of his ability, he seeks the advice of the veterans of the sport and slowly feels his way.

"I'd like to see some of those GOOD fellows that I hear and read about," he said. "Some of the fellows like Benny Leonard and Jack Delaney and a few others. I think I could learn a lot by watching them. Do you know, I never even saw Harry Greb box. He refereed one of my

MILLER TO BOX WALLACE

DETROIT, May 2.—(AP.)—Billy Wallace, trim little Cleveland lightweight will be the next foe to be be tossed into the ring with Ray Miller, savage punching left-hooker from Chicago.

Wallace today was matched to meet Miller, challenger for the world lightweight title, in another title elimination contest, as a result of the verdict which gave Miller a decidedly unpopular decision over Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, in their 10-round battle in the Olympia arena last night.

The Wallace-Miller bout will be staged in Navin Field, under direction of the Olympia Club, June 6. It will be the first outdoor show of major importance of the season. The winner has been assured a match with Sammy Mandell, lightweight titleholder.

The decision of Referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland in declaring Miller the winner over Petrolle after their 10 bloody rounds last night was most unpopular.

A majority of the 14,000 who witnessed the battle figured that Petrolle outpointed Miller in the last three rounds and was entitled to the verdict. Unbiased observers at the ringside agreed that Petrolle had won six of the 10 rounds, with three going to Miller and honors being even in the opening session.

33 Postponements Interfere With Major Races

Although the pennant races in the major leagues are not a month old, the weather has been responsible for the postponement of no less than 33 games so far this season. The National has been forced to abandon games 19 times, while the American has deferred 14, all of which will have to be played off as part of doubleheaders or on open dates.

Thorpe Is Denied Amateur Ranking

NEW YORK, May 2.—(INS.)—Informed of a report from Springfield, Mo., that Jim Thorpe planned to apply for reinstatement as an amateur in order to recover trophies he won in the Olympic Games in 1912, officials of the Amateur Athletic Union today expressed the opinion that the famous Indian athlete merely was seeking publicity. They said that in view of his long career in professional baseball and football, he had no chance of reinstatement.

29-HIT SPREE HELPS MACKS' AVERAGES

By LES CONKLIN.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The world champion New York Yankees have no monopoly of sluggings honors in the American League this season. The Detroit Tigers have been hitting at a .320 clip, and yesterday the Athletics went on a terrific batting spree against the Red Sox.

The Mackian maulers gave Ruth, Gehrig & Co. a mark to shoot at by poling out 29 hits, including three home runs, and scoring 24 runs. A batting bee in the sixth inning netted 10 runs. The Mackmen almost equalled the modern base hit record of 31, held by the Giants, and the modern run record of 27, held by Cleveland.

Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons each contributed five hits, Foxx getting two homers and Simmons one. Manager Carrigan, of the Sox, called upon 21 players in an effort to stem the tide. The Sox scored six runs.

BROWNS WIN ANOTHER

Meanwhile the league-leading St. Louis Browns chalked up their eleventh victory of the season by defeating Cleveland, 4 to 3, General Alvin Crowder registering his fourth win of the year. It was the Brown's fourth consecutive triumph and Cleveland's fifth straight defeat.

The first intersectional contest of the year will be played today when the Phillies entertain the Cubs. The other east vs. west clashes being held over until tomorrow and Saturday. The Cubs and Reds battled 13 innings to a 4-to-4 tie in Cincy yesterday after the Porkville outfit had scored two runs in the ninth to tie the score. Hack Wilson hit his fourth homer and Bush and Root pitched against Luque, Ash and Rixey.

AURORA ORDERS STRIKERS TO RACE OR GO

AURORA, Ill., May 2.—(AP.)—Striking horse owners, who have caused at least a two-day postponement of the annual spring turf meeting at the Aurora track yesterday were ordered to race or get off the track.

The ultimatum was issued by Clifford Trimble, general manager of the track, who warned that no further concessions would be granted the strikers and that thoroughbreds from other points would be invited to compete, beginning Friday.

Meanwhile, the strikers stuck to their demands that the track boost the minimum purses from $500 to $1,000 and that the track deduct 1 per cent from all first moneys from all events and turn that sum over to their organization, the Thoroughbred Horse Association. Some wavering was noticed in the strikers' ranks today, but generally they clung to their demands.

MORE COLLEGE BASEBALL NEEDED

By JESS CARVER.

What this country needs is more college baseball, and especially this particular part of the country.

The tri-state district, with Pitt, Tech, Duquesne, West Virginia, Penn State, Bucknell, St. Vincents, Davis - Elkins, Bethany, West Virginia Wesleyan, Grove City, Westminster, Allegheny and Geneva, or any combination of the same, could form a collegiate diamond conference that would be a pippin. In times past, when the local colleges did sponsor teams, they lost money. That was because there is no interest in the sport, and accordingly, all three schools, Pitt, Tech and the Dukes welcomed the first opportunity that arose to drop it.

Steve Swetonic.

LEAGUE SHOULD PLAY

It would be different if there was a league in existence, with a tangible reward for which the teams could play. Get the boys picking up the newspapers and looking for the standings each day and you'll get 'em laying it on the line at the gate.

There have been some fine college ball players in the city in recent years. There was Steve Swetonic and Alf Schmidt, Lefty Hill, Bob Irwin, Bill Parsons, Bill Carmen and Gene Ghales at Pitt; the Dougherty brothers, Dan Rooney, Bob McCaffrey, Pete Kilday and Jimmy Riley of the Dukes, and Obie Newman, Jimmy Robertson, Jimmy Anderson and Marshall at Carnegie Tech.

Penn State used to draw fair money when the team came here for the annual two-game series with Pitt, and West Virginia was always good for a bit over expenses.

At least one of the local institutions is willing to take a crack at baseball again, provided a league is formed. Elmer Layden at Duquesne said the other afternoon while trying to figure out what tennis is all about, that Duquesne would be a willing entrant in reorganized college ball hereabouts.

SAINTS TOP D. & E.

Cam Henderson, who turns out good football teams at Davis-Elkins, has a baseball club that is not to be sneezed at performing for him. It defeated the Clarksburg club of the Middle Atlantic League a week or so ago, but yesterday lost to Dick Guy's St. Vincent College nine at Beatty, Pa., 6 to 4.

Cam said he had not planned to go in for baseball very strong this spring, thus explaining the fact that there were very few uniforms on his ball players that matched. His club knows its oats, however, which is all that counts.

The Saints showed a lack of coordination and knowledge of baserunning, which worked to their disadvantage against the Senators. The infielders acted as though they were angry at each other at times, and when some of the boys got on the bases, showed a distinct disinclination to steal or advance on long fly balls.

Guy, however, still wears out a pair of trousers per game fidgeting about on the bench, and he isn't coaching, either.

We Know Our Woolens
We Know Our Tailors

We're just about as proud of what you DO NOT get in a Howard store, as we are of the Clothes and Treatment and Service you DO get:

You DO NOT get the ordinary $22.50 clothing-bunk and exaggeration, because it doesn't take bunk or misrepresentation to sell Howard Clothes. You DO NOT get stories about how we made Millions last year for thousands of stockholders. We're just plain clothingmen getting along nicely but NOT making millions; — we don't have to; we are not stock jobbers and are not primarily in the business of piling up dividends to make Wall Street sit up and take notice. You DO NOT get to see pictures of thousands of pretty girls grouped around our factory building, because we don't employ girls; our tailors are real men who know how to make real men's clothes for real men. We KNOW that tailoring is a man's job; a slip of a girl who can run a sewing machine is NOT a tailor.—at least not a good enough tailor for our Howard Clothes.

SPORTSMAN DIES

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—Charles Francis Flynn, widely-known sportsman and hotel magnate, died yesterday at his home after a brief illness. He was 51 years old. In Havana he built the Oriental Park race course, later being vice president and resident manager of the Havana American Jockey Club.

HOAK, CORELLI IN SUB BOUT AT MOOSE

A change has been made in the Moose Temple boxing card for tomorrow night whereby Jess Hoak, of McKeesport, will meet Joe Corelli, of Erie, in the opening bout. Harry Spencer, of Washington, Pa., and Chuck Zelnack, of Glassport, originally were paired for this event, but Spencer developed a boil and cannot fight.

Promoter Francis Flynn, of the Moose Club, plans to match the winners of his main bout, between Buck McTiernan and Mickey Solmen, and his semi-final, between Charley Wolfe and Johnny Piai, for the main bout of his show next week. That is, provided they put up good battles tomorrow night.

CRAWLEY'S OPPONENT DIES

Tommy Crawley's scheduled bout with Billy Podraza, subbing for Basil Galiano, at Orange, Tex., tonight is off for the very good reason that Podraza has died since the match was made. He was the boxer who became ill en tour at Zanesville, O., and succumbed in a hospital there last week.

Tommy is matched for two more bouts. He meets Ray Newton at Washington, Pa., one week from next Monday night and Paul Allen, of Chicago, at Wheeling, May 20. The Wheeling show is an open-air affair.

Newton also is booked for a couple of battles. He boxes Tony Hererra, of Chicago, at the Jolly Bowl in New Castle next Monday night and then tangles with Crawley exactly a week later.

Larry Brignolia, of Erie, and Frankie Petrolle, of Syracuse, box the windup at Erie tomorrow night.

A peculiar feature of Johnny Farr's two battles with Benny Bass at Philadelphia and Young Montreal at Providence on successive nights, Monday and Tuesday, was that he lost the decision in each and in each instance the news reports carried the statement that the verdict was unpopular.

SOLMEN TO BOX CAREY

Mickey Solmen, of New Castle, and Johnny Carey, of Erie, box the six-round semi-final to the Newton-Hererra bout at New Castle Monday night.

K. O. Christner boxes Ray Bold, formerly known as Billy Britton, at Cumberland, Md., tonight. Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, and K. O. Yutzy are in the semi-final. Young Rudy, of Charleroi, and Al Leary, of Philadelphia, headline a show at Barnesboro, and Ruby Goldstein tries a comeback against Gene Johnson, with Georgie Ward and Nick Testo boxing the semi-final at Elizabeth, N. J.

'Abe Martin Star Of Toronto Hurlers

Abe Martin, well known in local sandlot diamond circles, who is a member of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League, has turned in three triumphs without suffering a defeat so far this season. He has won half of the games that have been copped by the Leafs.

Martin, touted by his manager, Steve O'Neill, as being headed for a position as the outstanding left hander of the league, beat Baltimore 2 to 1, Jersey City 3 to 2 and Newark 10 to 1. He has given up but 12 hits in the three games.

early amateur bouts, but I never saw him with the gloves on. I hear everybody telling what a great fighter he was. I'd give almost anything to have seen him perform, because at times I have been compared with him. In fact, they tell me my style is a combination of his and Jimmy Slattery's.

"Some of my friends tell me I ought be more aggressive, that I should tear in and fight and not box so much. What do you think? Others tell me I am proceeding too cautiously and should step out and meet them all. I am accused of picking my opponents. I don't mean to. I am satisfied to go along slowly and learn all that I should know before meeting men of greater experience."

REAL CHAMPIONSHIP TIMBER

My advice to Buck was to keep going along as he has been going, to continue to box rather than to slug and to be his own natural self. He is one of the most promising youngsters to come to the fore in Pittsburgh in years and it would be a shame to injure his prospects by having him listen to a lot of contradictory advice. He is a natural and graceful boxer with a sound defense, fine footwork, excellent marksmanship and well-developed straight punching. His left works with precision and he hits fast and true with his right and is a treat for the eyes in his general maneuvering. When one looks at him in action the thought strikes home at a glance that here is an artist doing his stuff.

It is of just such timber as McTiernan that champions are made. There is about him a reminder of the cool, deliberate Jack Delaney, one of the greatest sharpshooters of modern times in the ring. He has the same patience to stalk his foe and cut him down for the killing. Patience is one of the rarest attributes of the ringmen, and McTiernan has it in copious quantities. He should go far, perhaps on to the championship of the world. He will be a middleweight in time—and, unless the fates are unkind to him, he should be one of the greatest men in his class. Flattery is not likely to unbalance him because he is his own most severe critic, and he has poise, and class sticks out all over him.

MAKES HASTE SLOWLY

McTiernan's cautiousness at this stage—he is only 20 years old—is in his favor. He will not permit himself to be rushed along. One of these nights he will find himself and then there should be no stopping him. Benny Leonard, one of the greatest lightweight champions in history, was that way. He served a hard apprenticeship, learned his trade well, and then went on to the heights. For several years he was known as merely a good, fast boxer with a cream puff punch. Then he knocked out Joe Mandot and a few other good men and became a "killer," and one of the outstanding titleholders of all time. McTiernan possesses the same analytical sort of a mind as Leonard and the same natural aptitude for doing the right thing intuitively in the ring.

INTERESTING BACKGROUND

The background of this youngster who will be on parade in the Moose Temple ring tomorrow night is interesting. He started in as a boxer in the gymnasium of the Swissvale A. C., about four years ago. Anthony Nanci, the flyweight boxer, first got him to put on the gloves in a friendly sparring match. It was only the first step to engaging in amateur bouts, and he was a success from the start. His first year as a simon-pure he fought frequently, but in the next two years only intermittently. He won the National junior welterweight championship and was a semi-finalist in the senior tournament. He turned professional less than a year ago, following the death of his father, and since then has engaged in 14 bouts.

Starting out under the management of Eddie Mead in Cleveland, McTiernan now is under the wing of P. J. (Bunny) Buntack, of Swissvale. While in Cleveland, he came under the calulating eye of Matt Hinkle, famous referee and promoter, who wanted to buy his contract. Since then a number of other managers have sought in vain to gain title to him.

Buck is the oldest of nine children, two of them girls, and his ring earnings go to help support them and his mother. The youngest of the McTiernans is only two years old and the oldest, next to Buck, is 18. Buck attended high school for two years and then went to work and was just returning to finish his schooling when his father's death caused him to seek a livelihood in the ring. In his school days he caddied at one of the country clubs and won a caddie tournament.

NEEDS ONLY OPPORTUNITY

Mickey Solmen, McTiernan's opponent tomorrow night, is no stranger to him. They recently fought a six-round bout at Motor Square Garden which was declared a draw, although McTiernan really was the winner in a close affair. It remains to be seen how the rivals will pace over the 10-round distance, but one thing is certain:

WIN OR LOSE TOMORROW NIGHT, BUCK HAS THE MAKINGS OF A CHAMPION AND NEEDS ONLY THE OPPORTUNITY TO PROVE HIMSELF.

Letzelter, Tech Star, to Go to West Point

Cyril Letzelter, of Martins Ferry, star halfback for Carnegie Tech for the last three years, has announced his intention of accepting the scholarship offered him by Congressman Frank Murphy, of the Eighteenth Ohio District, to enter the United States Military Academy at West Point, following his graduation from the Skibo institution in June.

Letzelter, of course, will be a candidate for the Army's grid team. Buff Jones, Cadet coach, is well aware of the Tech star's ability, and more than likely will welcome him on the squad.

PIRATES' GAME CALLED OFF

rosky scurried over with the run that made everything even and the contest rolled into extra rounds.

Right here it should be stated that the next Pirate pitcher to enter the game won the slab honors of the long afternoon. Ervin Brame stepped out to heckle the Redbird wreckers, and what a job he turned in through the succeeding five rounds. Brame retired 11 Cardinals in succession before one of them was able to reach first.

Hill and Sherdel were on the slab at the beginning of the fight. The Pirates liked Bill's pitching in the first round, the blending of three hits with a balk giving our boys two tallies. Sherdel's balk was unfortunate in that he was winding up to throw the ball when it fell from his fingers. The balk was called as the second run of the inning was recorded.

Chick Hafey, batting star of the day, figured in three of the runs made by the Cards, and it wasn't his fault that he did not win the contest in the dramatic thirteenth. Hafey's double and Gelbert's single in the second produced a run and three singles and a sacrifice in the third tied things up.

Big Chick came up in the fifth and found runners on third and second with two out. The slugger drove a wicked double to left to produce the huns, and Bunker Hill was told to vacate the premises. Swetonic relieved him and pitched shutout ball right down the line until the arrival of the ninth, when he made way for a pinch hitter.

How should one conquer a nervousness on the putting green?

Answered By

BOB CRUICKSHANK,

Winner of Los Angeles, San Antonio, Hot Springs, North-and-South Open Championship, 1927. Maryland Open, 1928.

Nervousness on the putting green is something that only the pupil himself can conquer. It seems that when a player of nervous disposition starts to putt, he reaches the verge of a collapse. The best method of effecting a cure is to turn away from the ball when you feel this condition approaching and take a few practice swings. Develop a slow putting stroke and this will aid materially in controlling the nerves. Keep the thought in mind that nothing will happen to you if you DO take four or five putts on each green. But you alone can cure this nervousness—no one will be able to do it for you.

McGraw to Return To Schooldays Scene

ST. BONAVENTURE, N. Y., May 2.—John McGraw, leader of the New York Giants for the last 27 years, and former student at St. Bonaventure's in the late '90's will return to the scene of his early diamond triumphs when he brings his team here May 31 for an exhibition game with its nine.

The avowal of McGraw to appear at his old stamping grounds does not substantiate the claims of baseball critics who in the past have assailed him for his ruthlessness in overcoming obstacles that impeded his progress in the baseball world. By this gesture he has shown that a spark of warmth still pervades his heart, and that his love for his alma mater has not diminished behind the cloak of 30 years.

Burman to Try Comeback in Ring

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—(AP.)—Joe Burman, the Chicago bantamweight who retired from the boxing game five years ago when he was at his best, is going to try a comeback at the age of 30. He hopes to bring the featherweight crown held by Andre Routis, of France, back to America.

After some six weeks of training Burman yesterday declared himself to be in excellent condition and ready to embark upon his comeback campaign.

Burman fought the best in the bantamweight ranks before retiring. Among his opponents were Carl Tremaine, Bud Taylor, Joe Lynch, Kid Herman and Dick Griffin.

Burman retired from the ring when he married the daughter of a wealthy Chicago department store owner. He has placed himself under the management of his old pilot Tommy Walsh, famous handler of boxers.

Long's Sport Comment

us? Why, he holds up his glove with the ball in it almost as soon as he hits the ground. Did Rice do that, he did not, for the simple reason that he did not have the ball in his hand. Not one of the three umpires gave the customary decision on the play. They waited until they saw the crowd tumbling on the field, then they walked off. They simply took away a ball game we had won."

PECKINPAUGH will not get much sympathy in Pittsburgh. It looks like a case of chickens coming home to roost, for in 1925 Peckinpaugh was a member of the Washington club and played against the Bucs in the world series.

Roger was one of the loudest in ridiculing Pittsburgh's protests against Rice's alleged catch of Smith's drive over the short fence in center, and in insisting that the umpire took the proper action in allowing a catch that he did not see.

THE cry in horseracing circles this season has been for good young jockeys. Owners realize that new boys must be developed to supplant the few present day stars eventually, and there has been keen competition among them in a hunt for material of promise.

Thus far the Whitney stable appears to have the season's find. He is Slim Robertson, who is the leading jockey in the battle for honors in the East. Robertson already has 16 wins to his credit, seven of them scored at Havre De Grace. He rode his sixteenth winner Monday at Pimlico.

Tom Churchill.

TOM CHURCHILL, University of Oklahoma, finished second to Barney Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania, in the decathlon at the Penn relays, and inasmuch as the decathlon includes the 100-meters dash, broad jump, shot put, high jump, 400-meters run, 110-meters hurdles, discus throw, javelin throw, 1,500-meters run and pole vault there would appear to be no doubt of Berlinger's superiority as an all-around athlete. But that applies only to track and field ability. Churchill still must be rated the better all-around man because he is a star in a greater number of athletic branches. He is a football and basketball luminary, being a varsity player in both sports, is one of the best college boxers west of the Mississippi and is also formidable on the wrestling mat. He appears to have a little edge even on Lionel Conacher, former Pittsburgh hockey star, who yesterday announced his intention of entering professional boxing. Conacher, besides his hockey and boxing activities, has played baseball, football, Rugby, soccer and lacrosse.

LEADING STEEL FIRMS DOUBLE PROFITS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE earnings of 10 leading steel companies which have published their statements for the first quarter of 1929 were double the net profits of the first three months of 1928.

Every one of the companies showed a substantial gain. The net profit of the United States Steel Corporation, which comprised more than half of the total, showed an improvement in virtually the same ratio as the total for all companies.

The 10 companies showed net profit after taxes, depreciation, interest and other charges of $70,349,605 compared with $34,061,653 a year ago. This was a gain of 106 per cent.

THE United States Steel Corporation reported first quarter net profit of $42,185,447 compared with $21,331,871, a gain of 98 per cent.

The greatest ingot production was primarily responsible for the sharp improvement in profits. Ingot production in the three months totaled 13,849,701 tons. This was 10 per cent more than in the first quarter of 1928.

COSTS of all producers were substantially reduced as a result of the fact that operations were close to capacity.

In addition to this, prices of most types of steel products were about $2 a ton higher in the early months of 1929 than they were in the first quarter of 1928.

Production was steadily on the increase during the quarter. The output reached a new peak of 5,049,176 tons in March. No figures are available for April but the general expectation is that a further increase in the output will be shown.

IF THIS prediction is born out, the second quarter will compare very favorably with the record returns in production and earnings for the first three months even after allowing for a seasonal slump. Thus far, however, there have been no signs of any summer depression in demand. The usual change in the trend of steel mill operations is falling much later this year than it has in the past. The peak is normally reached in March or April.

Bethlehem Steel, the largest independent steel company showed a very marked gain in its earnings. Net for the quarter was $9,045,590 compared with $3,384,718 a year ago. Jones and Laughlin, the second largest independent, did not show so large an increase in proportion but this was probably due to the fact that it experienced no such slump in profits as did Bethlehem last year. The local company reported net of $5,254,590 compared with $2,903,457 a year ago.

THE following table compares the net profit of the ten steel companies for the quarter ended March 31, 1929, with the corresponding quarter of 1928.

U. S. Steel	$42,185,447	$21,331,871

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Pool Pets Whirled Up

The market was feverish and erratic today despite a pronounced upward tendency in selected specialties and many of the utilities. The money cloud lowered over the market as menacing as at any time since the Reserve Board issued its warning on credit conditions two months ago. Call loans were at 10 per cent when the renewal was posted this morning and the figure remained at that level all day. Return of May 1 interest and dividend money to the regular banking channels is not as yet completed, but it is doubtful if as large a percentage of these funds as usual will be available for brokerage purposes. The Reserve Board monthly statement today said the fundamental credit situation was unchanged from the stock market standpoint although it noted the reduction of $300,000,000 in brokers' loans since the peak was reached the latter half of March. Traders feared further restrictive measures and many of the less venturesome were inclined to remain out of stocks. On the other hand, some of the cliques were whirling their favorites up in sensational style. The more pessimistically inclined observers interpreted this as an effort to sell the market under cover of the pyrotechnics in the pool pets.

Columbia Gas Rights.

The Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation is offering stockholders of record June 15 the right to subscribe to one additional common share at $24 for each 10 shares held. Rights expire August 15. The company reports for the first quarter consolidated net income of $11,701,107 after expenses, reserves, charges and taxes, equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.22 a share on 8,432,840 common shares, against $1.09 on the same common basis in the 1928 quarter.

At current prices this makes "rights" worth about $4. The company has continued the acquisition of pipe lines formerly used for the transportation of oil, and has acquired important properties of that character in Maryland and Southwestern Pennsylvania, thus placing it in a position to supply natural gas to manufacturers operating in those areas.

Metal Markets Quiet

The non-ferrous metal markets were quiet in the past week, and prices made little change, says Engineering and Mining Journal, adding that sellers are content to wait until demand manifests itself rather than force metal on an unwilling market by cutting prices. The volume of copper sold was only nominal with virtually all of the business going to the custom melters. The large producers are not selling anything at all. The price continues at 18 cents a pound, delivered at usual connecticut points.

40 Per Cent Oil Waste.

At the annual meeting of Tidewater Associated Oil Company, A. J. Byles, president, predicted conservation of oil resources, and reintegration of the oil industry. He continued: "Material which could have added 40 per cent to the nation's gasoline output last year was burned in the form of fuel oil instead. The nation is not going to stand by and watch the wasting of one of its most valuable, irreplaceable natural resources through overproduction and the burning of the surplus in competition with coal. We must have conservation and a reintegration of the industry, which has been disintegrating for over 20 years. Progress in stabilizing the oil situation is being made. The industry wants to right itself and it will do so."

We believe it is the purpose of these interests to replace the present board of directors and certain executive officers of the company by a new board consisting of individuals who are not now connected with the management of the company even as directors or officers. The Foundation Company is in a strong financial and business position, with excellent prospects for a successful year in 1929, and for the future. He also states: "In addition to showing a substantial profit, heavy reserves for every possible contingency have been set up," Pivirotto says. "The first quarter does not reflect any dividend from profit of two subsidiary companies, the Pittsburgh Insurance Agency and the Keystone Discount Company. From present indications, our profits for the second quarter should be double the amount for the first quarter." The company's stock is listed in the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange.

Alaska-Seattle Hop May Save Woman's Life

SEATTLE, May 2.—(AP.)—Victorious in a thousand-mile race with death, Mrs. Peter Kostometinoff, of Sitka, Alaska, critically ill from septicemia, was given a fair chance for recovery by her physician here today.

Mrs. Kostometinoff was brought here by plane from Sitka yesterday after her husband had been told the only chance to save her life was to put her under the care of a specialist. The plane, piloted by Ansel Eckman and navigated by Robert E. Ellis, landed here 11 hours after the take-off at 8:40 a. m.

Dr. Lester J. Palmer said Mrs. Kostometinoff "arrived in better condition than if she had made the trip by other means."

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Rally | Wall Street Quotations

STOCKS RALLY FROM EARLY DECLINES

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling down sharply in the morning on fears of a large increase in brokers' loans after the close and then rallying briskly when heavy buying developed in a few of the so-called "Morgan stocks."

Except for the publication of another series of favorable earnings statements and the resumption of dividends on Yellow Taxi of New York after a lapse of two years, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement. Reports from the leading basic industries indicated that production was being maintained at a high rate with no signs of a genaral recession, despite fears that high money rates would have a retarding influence.

MONEY LOWER

Call money renewed at 10 per cent, as against 11 yesterday, and held steady at that rate throughout the morning and early afternoon. Easier rates are looked for next week.

The recent increase in public participation, as reflected in the expanding volume of commission house business and odd lot buying, has stimulated pool activities. These have centered largely in issues in which special developments are reported to be pending particularly in the public utility, merchandising, motor accessory, farm implement and amusement groups.

Sharp recessions took place in the United Aircraft and Advance Rumely issues in the early trading. The recent spectacular advances in these stocks have been attributed to a driving in of the short interest, and have led to suggestions of possible "technical corners." A few high priced specialties such as Union Carbide and Commercial Solvents also broke badly, but they had only a temporary unsettling effect on the general list.

RADIO TAKES LEAD

Radio returned to its old position as a market leader by climbing more than 5 points to a new high record for the present issue above $119 a share, one block of 18,000 shares changing hands at 112. Johns Manville ran up 10 points to 194⅝, or nearly 40 points above the March low. Air Reduction soared more than 10 points to a new top at 129½ and Ludlum Steel moved up nearly 9 to a new high at 95½.

American Radiator, International Harvester, Peoples Gas, May Department Stores, Simmons, Keith-Albee common and preferred, Borg Warner, Wilcox Rich A and B, Hershey Chocolate preferred and American Radiator and Standard Sanitary all sold 3 to 7 points higher, some of them at new high records.

RAILS QUIET

Rails took little part in the advance, although quiet accumulation was apparent in some of the high grade investment issues.

Public utilities played a prominent part in the forward movement of the last hour. There was also a huge turnover of the banking issues. Shares easily moved because of the limited floating supply were the largest gainers. R. H. Macy was sent up 8 points, Delaware and Hudson 6, Mullins Manufacturing 5½ and United States Realty 5. The close was strong. Sales approximated 3,900,000 shares.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 2.—Cotton showed considerable irregularity today following early advances on relatively firm cables, reports of low temperatures in the South and further rains in eastern and central belts. Advances met selling on indications for clearing weather in the belt, but these were coupled with prospects for frost in eastern and central belt sections, which seemed to bring in a little buying during the middle of the day. The mid-afternoon market was comparatively quiet but fairly steady at net advances of about 10 to 15 points.

Early reactions which carried prices back within 4 or 5 points of yesterday's closing quotations were followed by a quieter and steadier market late in the morning. The forecast for frost in the central parts of the western belt received considerable comment, and although some traders were inclined to doubt any damage, the prediction may have accounted for some of the buying. At midday, July was selling around 18.75c and December 19.05c or about 18 to 20 points net higher.

French Bank Raises Rate to Germans

LONDON, May 2.—The "Financial News" understands the Bank of France has raised the rediscount rate for bills drawn by German firms from 3½ to 4 per cent. The discrimination has caused some surprise in French banking circles and at least one leading bank has protested. The measure is regarded in Germany as a political rather than a financial one, and as being calculated to accelerate withdrawal of French funds from Germany.

March Oil Output at Record.

Petroleum production in the United States for March amounted to 82,515,000 barrels. The commerce department, in announcing the figure, said that this was the largest amount produced in any one month ever recorded, but that the increasing consumption of petroleum products, notably gasoline, resulted in slowing down the rate of increase in stocks on hand. Gasoline consumption was estimated to have reached a daily average of 919,000 barrels during March, or a figure 17 per cent above the March consumption rate last year. The grand total of stocks of petroleum on hand was placed at 642,530,000 barrels at the end of March, against 634,063,000 barrels on hand the preceding month, and 612,928,000 on hand at the end of March, 1928. Gasoline stocks March 31 amounted to 47,205,000 barrels, against 46,000,000 on hand at the end of February, and 41,150,000 on hand March 31 last year. At the same time the department's statement said that the supply of gasoline in storage represented but a 44-day supply, in view of the increased consumption while the amount on hand at the end of February constituted a 48-day supply for consumption at the rate then indicated. Texas was the only state to record a daily average production increase during March among states important in petroleum supply. The output in California and Oklahoma declined during March as compared with February.

Reserve's Money Market View.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank, in its monthly review of credit and business conditions, states that "there has been no essential change during the month in the position of the money market" from the situation which prevailed at the end of March and resulted in the crisis which sent the call money rate to 20 per cent. The review points out that the reduction in call loans, which amounts to $177,000,000 since February 6, when the Federal Reserve issued its first warning on the excessive use of credit for speculation, has been offset by an increase of $284,000,000 in banking loans directly to customers on security collateral. The reduction in brokerage loans since they reached their peak on March 20, however, has been $301,000,000, and since that time bank loans on security collateral have decreased $24,000,000. "It is clear," states the review, "that the total amount of credit employed in carrying securities remains slightly larger than early in February, but is reduced from the high point of March 20."

Western Union Progress.

A comprehensive picture of the progress registered in the communications business last year is gleaned from a survey of the annual report of the Western Union Telegraph, made public just recently. Last year was one of the most successful in the history of this pioneer telegraph and cable company, with the gross operating revenues reaching a new high for all time of $136,449,512.70. At the same time the volume of traffic transmitted over the company's ocean cables was greater than that handled in any other year. Employes' wages were also the highest in the history of the company, judging by the average wage per employe. During 1928, 60,000 miles of copper wire were strung. About 65 per cent of the company's land line mileage is now of copper. Pneumatic tube systems were installed in various cities during 1928 and in certain congested centers aerial lines were replaced by underground cables and conduits. The company's simplex automatic telegraph printer installations also were carried on in a satisfactory manner, replacing manual telegraph operations and conducing to greater speed and accuracy of service.

Irving Air Chute Contracts.

Irving Air Chute Company, makers of standard parachutes for the air forces of practically all the governments of the world, has closed important parachute contracts with the Curtiss Flying Service, Inc., and with the National Flying Schools. Forbes Record-Breaking Number Of Dividends Increased.

By B. C. FORBES

THE number of companies proving able to improve their dividend disbursements is beyond precedent. During April no fewer than 150 favorable announcements were made. This compared with only 70 a year ago and 60 two years ago.

Since January 1 better dividends have been declared to a total of 601, contrasted with 378 during the first four months of last year.

Industrial and financial companies, not railroads or public utilities, have been chiefly responsible for this remarkable showing.

THE form taken by last month's cheering dividend announcements of industrial, utility and railway companies is here shown:

	Ind.	PU.	RR.
Initial	59	4	0
Extra	42	1	3
Stock	21	1	1
Increased	15	1	1
Resumed	2	0	1
Totals	146	7	6

IN the first four months of last year public utilities contributed 21 to the total and railroads 12. How this year's performance of industrial and miscellaneous companies compares with the first third of last year is brought out by this table:

	1929	1928
Initial	100	105
Extra	175	145
Stock	80	29
Increased	80	46
Back	18	14
Resumed	10	5
Totals	549	345

THE greater prosperity of the current year has not been confined to any one industry or to only a few industries. Look, for example, at the wide variety of enterprises that declared extra cash payments last month—in addition to the 21 corporations declaring stock dividends:

Conn. Gen. Life Ins.	1%

W. B. Posney pfd.	16⅜ %

EACH month this year has shown a gain over last year. It is perhaps significant that the increase has become more notable each successive month. This table, compiled from the exclusive records kept for this column, gives comparisons since 1924:

	1929	1928	1927	1926	1925
January	120	111	89	87	69
February	126	98	81	72	64
March	196	99	93	102	81
April	159	70	60	60	34
Total 4-mo.	601	378	323	421	248
May	78	68	54	42
June	163	137	98	67
July	93	60	54	36
August	108	63	57	39
September	135	104	85	52
October	133	83	69	54
November	153	136	103	96
December	227	205	184	147
Totals	1468	1179	1025	811

THESE dividend records, and also the excellent showing made by most of the quarterly reports now appearing, do not harmonize with the comments made by many of the business men one meets. Not a few merchants and others ask: "Where is all this prosperity the government heads and the newspapers constantly talk about?"

Yet the facts and figures here given are as they are.

PATRICIA PITT'S SOCIAL COMMENT

Miss Mollie Cullum to Be Presented May 10 at Court of St. James

OUR country may be a democracy and we may profess indifference to titles, royalty, coronets and all such adjuncts of the government by kings, but how many American women are there who wouldn't be radiant with delight at the thought of a presentation at court? In England, the debutante is "made" socially after she has made her bow at the Court of St. James. And most of our own women feel that they have added a priceless something to their careers in society when they have donned the long-trained gowns and three-feathered headdresses, and curtsied to King George and Queen Mary.

The next royal court at Buckingham Palace—and, incidentally, the first for many months—is scheduled for May 9 and the second on the following day, with King George's illness forcing Queen Mary to occupy the throne alone. And one of our own Pittsburgh girls is scheduled for presentation on the second day, May 10. This debutante is Mollie Cullum, daughter of the James Barlow Cullums, of East Drive, Sewickley, who have been abroad, now, for some time.

Mollie has been having a very busy winter and spring. She made her New York debut during the last season and is scheduled to be introduced to her parents' Pittsburgh and Sewickley friends at a garden party in June. And she is adding the final touch with her appearance at the Court of St. James next week.

Many names of prominence have been submitted by the American charge d'affairs in London, one of them that of Helen Wills, the tennis star. Helen is scheduled to be presented at the first court, on May 8, and so will be among the first of the American women to make her bow this year.

ONE or two of our most important weddings this spring are going to take place in other cities, since several local men are marrying out-of-town girls. You remember my telling you, perhaps, about the wedding of Marjorie Gilbert, daughter of Mrs. Ada Kipp Gilbert, of New York and Englewood, N. J., and Alexander Hays Hunter, son of Mrs. Alexander Stuart Hunter, of Fifth avenue, which is set for Friday, May 17. This ceremony will be performed at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, and it will be followed by a reception at the Park Lane. Quite a few local folks are planning to go East for the wedding, and, naturally, several Pittsburgh men are included in the bridal party.

The bride, herself, will have just one attendant, Margaret Kidder, of Englewood. Mr. Hunter is having his brother, Joseph Fisher Hunter, of Rye, N. Y., for his best man, and the ushers will include George Harton Singer, Jr., Lewis A. Park and William F. Bickel, all local men; Truman P. Handy, of Riverdale, N. J.; Stanley M. Moffat, of New York, and William John Logan, of Long Island.

I KNOW you will be interested, too, in hearing about a wedding which will take place over in Paris this month, with the brother of one of our young society matrons as bridegroom. This is the marriage of Mary Frost, formerly of St. Louis, and James Brown Mabon, Jr., of New York, and it will be solemnized May 13 in the Church of St. Germain des Pres in Paris. Mr. Mabon is a brother of Mrs. Harvey Childs III, of Northumberland street, and she and Mr. Childs sailed yesterday on the Mauretania to attend the wedding. Mr. Childs is to be best man for his brother-in-law.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY E. KIRSTEIN, of Rochester, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Kirstein, to Albert E. Kabet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Kabet, of Raleigh street, Squirrel Hill. Miss Kirstein is a graduate of Highland Manor and is now a student at Ohio State University. Mr. Kabet was graduated from Princeton University, class of 1923, and from the University of Pittsburgh law school.

Byrne, of Philadelphia, were married Tuesday morning in St. Philip's Church, Crafton, by the Rev. Ralph L. Hayes, brother of the bride. Miss Genevieve Dorothy Hayes was her sister's maid of honor and Frank E. Reilly was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Byrne have left for a southern trip and after June 1 will be at home in Crafton.

Congress of Clubs' Officers Inducted

UNDER most auspicious circumstances the new members of the official family took their places at the Congress of Clubs yesterday. May Day was inaugurated as "Congress Day," and hereafter the new officers are to assume their duties on that day which also marks the anniversary of moving into the clubhouse. The retiring board had appointed its president, Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, chairman for the day. She presented the Congress Choral, Mrs. Eda Shaffer Kreiling and Miss Jessie Payne (with Mrs. J. D. Boydston and Mrs. C. H. Stiles as accompanists), who sang about love and Maytime and spring and flowers and all those other things people are supposed to sing about at this time of year.

Then Mrs. Coslowsky handed the gavel to her successor, Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, who made an earnest little speech concerning her ideals for the big organization whose course she is to steer for the next two years, and Mrs. Joseph B. Drake, president of the Woman's Club of Pittsburgh, presented Mrs. Johnston with a gorgeous bouquet and Mrs. Coslowsky with a corsage of yellow roses and marguerites from the Woman's Club, Mrs. Johnston's first club affiliation. And by no means the least interesting item on the program were the readings Mrs. J. Charles Wilson so aptly chose—"A Prayer for the House" and "A May Basket," a potpourri of charming verse.

But one must not forget the lovely decorations—gay spring flowers in baskets and vases (and on the tea table with candles), great branches of dogwood and sprays of daisies all very attractively arranged.

A MEETING of the Women's International League for Peace on Saturday in the Congress of Clubs will be addressed by Catherine Devereaux Blake, chairman of the League's national committee on education. Mrs. Blake, who is a direct descendant of Jonathan Edwards and Samuel Johnson, first senators from Connecticut, is president of the teachers' section, Women's Suffrage Association of New York, and an executive of the N. E. A. Her subject will be "War and Illiteracy."

J ERNEST WRIGHT, of the English department, University of Pittsburgh, will address the May meeting of the Women's Press Club to be held Monday in the Woman's City Club. The nominating committee will report at the business session.

A MEETING of the Mothers of Democracy will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the Congress of Clubs.

"THE MILK SUPPLY AS A PUBLIC HEALTH PROBLEM" will be discussed by Dr. Charles B. Mains, director of the City Department of Health, at the weekly meeting of the College Club tomorrow. Hostesses for the afternoon include Mrs. John D. Duff, Mrs. John E. Nelson, Mrs. Earl Blough, Mrs. Wesley B. Holmes, Mrs. Walter C. Leonard, Mrs. H. B. Kirk-Patrick, Mrs. George F. MacDonald and Mrs. Frank R. Frost. SEEK NEW GIRL IN TORCH CASE today, armed with 20 letters which, he said, were written to him by Mrs. Peacox.

AMAZING LOVE STORY

An amazing recital was poured from the lips of Bussey, a former high school classmate and chum of Peacox.

"It may sound rotten to say it, but Dot just literally threw herself at my head," said Gene. "I couldn't bring myself to kiss my friend's wife. But she would throw her arms around my neck and kiss me even with Earle looking on."

NICE BOY!

Sympathy for the slain girl is missing from this sophomore, a type of the modern era of youth.

"I am here to help Earle all I can," said Gene, "I can see how Earle imagined many things and probably goaded himself on. I hope that my story will show he was not himself but that his deed was that of a normally quiet man who aroused himself to a frenzy by the belief that his wife was unfaithful to him.

"She called me up and I went out to her house. I didn't know at that time that Earle was working nights. Though I was pretty badly tempted, I resisted her. She literally flung herself at my head. I felt I would never see her again after I left.

"But I went back to the Bronxville home pretty soon at her invitation and kept going back all summer. I began kissing her and felt morally guilty. We did a lot of necking and I always felt I was treating my friend Earle right badly."

ord, were among the notables already here for the races.

Others in attendance, who will be speakers tonight at the annual banquet of the Yale Club of Pittsburgh in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, are Rear Admiral M. A. Moffett, U. S. Navy; Assistant Secretary of Commerce William P. McCracken, Jr., and Capt. Ira Eakers, pilot of the Question Mark. Another speaker will be Commander Rosendahl. Two other speakers, Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison and Assistant Secretary of Navy David S. Ingalls, are expected to leave Washington by plane this afternoon for attendance at the races.

To insure safety to spectators as well as balloonists, the 12 entries in the races will take off Saturday morning with less ballast than usual, it was decided today by Lieut. Charles Bauch, operations officer.

The ruling that balloons drop more ballast than usual at the outset came as the result of careful study of conditions in Pitt Stadium, Lieut. Bauch announced. The pilots will be required to ascend with two or three bags less than usual, it was decided, to make certain of the balloons gaining sufficient altitude to clear the rim of the stadium, nearby buildings of the University of Pittsburgh and Electric light wires. Each bag weighs about 40 pounds.

FLIERS BALK AT PLAN

At a business meeting of pilots and aides preceding a banquet in the William Penn Hotel last night, a number of the balloonists objected to dropping so much ballast, claiming they would need it for prolonged flight over treacherous hilly country, but it was finally agreed unanimously that the safety factor was more important than the probability of breaking endurance and distance records.

Pilots drew lots for take-off position at the banquet.

James M. Magee, chairman of the committee of sponsors, instituted the drawing in rather novel manner. Waiters brought in a huge tray of desert consisting of chocolate balloons banked around ice cream and fancifully molded ice. One by one the pilots were called to choose from the array one of the balloon confections, inside of each was to be found a number. This number specified the pilot's position.

DETROITER DRAWS NO. 1

The results of the unique drawing follow:

One of the men, Leopoldo Quiroga, was charged with shouting "Death to Morrow." Ambassador Morrow was attacked vigorously in posters spread about the city prior to the demonstrations.

PROTEST ON TAXICAB FARE RAISE PROMISED

graph told you about it? The notice of intention to increase rates were filed two weeks ago—by the Green Cab Company, on April 18, and by the Yellow Cab Company on April 19. Don't you think that you, or at least Assistant City Solicitor Charles P. Lang, who is supposed to look after these matters, should have known of this before now?"

"Do you suppose," was the answer, "that we have the money to hire a lot of detectives to report on everything that goes on at Harrisburg or Washington? Do you think that Mr. Lang should hire a man and turn his own salary over to him to watch the office of the Public Service Commission? Ordinarily the Public Service Commission notifies us."

NO INFORMATION HERE

The Pittsburgh office of the Public Service Commission reported it had received no information relative to the taxi fare increase.

The rule of the commission is that, unless objection is raised, new rates automatically go into effect about a month after notice of intention to change them is filed. So it seems likely the taxi companies would have been able to "put their scheme over" without protest if the Sun-Telegraph had not learned of the plan. Unless effective opposition develops, the Green Cab increase will go into effect May 20, and the Yellow on May 21.

The companies at present charge 25 cents for the first quarter of a mile, and 10 cents for each half-mile thereafter. The new tariff is 25 cents for the first fifth of a mile and 10 cents for each two-fifths of a mile thereafter. The increase will be 10 cents for every two miles of transportation after the initial charge of 25 cents has been consumed.

When asked what he intended to do about it Assistant City Solicitor Lang said:

PLEADS IGNORANCE

"I did not know the companies planned to increase their rates. I am glad you have called my attention to this. I will write the Public Service Commission at once and get complete information. The city may file a protest. But, of course, that remains to be decided."

The Green Cab Company was asked what justification it could offer for the higher rates. The inquiry was referred to the company's attorney, Charles K. Robinson, who said:

"Two main elements have entered into the increase. One is the increase in the state gasoline tax from 3 to 4 cents a gallon. The other is the material increase in registration fees for public vehicles. A third factor is the tendency for the cost of gasoline to increase. I believe gasoline is a little higher this year than last year.

BLAMES HILLS

"In comparing taxi rates in Pittsburgh with those in other cities it must be borne in mind that Pittsburgh is a hilly city and wear and tear on cabs is greater than in flat cities. Moreover, the percentage of dead mileage reported by cabs here is greater than in other cities because our business consists largely in transporting people between the residential districts and the business section, and often on the return from one of these trips the cabs fail to pick up any passengers en route, whereas in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Washington a good deal of business is picked up in the streets on the return from a trip, and the percentage of dead mileage is accordingly lower.

Edward F. Kram, treasurer of the Yellow Cab company, said its increased rates would be the same as those of the Green cabs. He, too, was asked how he could justify it, and answered:

"The picture is this: There was a rate cut last summer. It was ill-advised. We had to make it to meet competition, but have derived no benefit from it. We are getting nowhere under the present rates, and cannot hope to keep going unless we raise them.

"Our expenses are increasing. On July 1 the state tax on gasoline will jump from three to four cents a gallon. That alone will cost the Yellow Cab Company $65,000 a year more than it has been paying.

BLAMES GAS LICENSE

"On the first of next year licenses will go up 25 per cent. That will cost us several thousand dollars additional.

"We find gasoline advancing right along. Every advance of a cent a gallon costs us from $1,000 to $1,250 a month.

"Insurance protection for the public and for our passengers costs more than formerly. It costs more to settle claims. We had to pay about $250,000 in settlement of accident claims last year.

"The increase in rates, we figure, will increase our returns from seven to nine cents a trip. No, I cannot tell you without looking up a lot of records, how many trips we have in a year.

"I will tell you, though, that the taxicab business is in a bad way. The buses are cutting into our profits, taking passengers away from us. In summer we don't make a nickel, and that is the case with taxi companies all over the country."

Watch the Sun-Telegraph for developments in the taxicab rate war and to see what the city will do to prevent higher rates.

Reads of 'Drunk' With His Name; Ends Life

CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP.)—Vernon T. Peters, 31, bond salesman and former Harvard student, had been reading a novel, "Beyond the Jordan," written by a college classmate and dealing with undergraduate life at the Cambridge institution. The name of one of the principal characters was "Drunken Peters."

Peters' body was found in his apartment yesterday, the novel on the desk before him and a revolver nearby. He is thought to have shot himself in the belief that he was the prototype of "Drunken Peters."

He came here a few years ago from California and was living apart from his wife.

CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP.)—This year, already notable for an enduring winter of snows and a warm and mellow March, enhanced its reputation for fickleness today by sending to Chicago a flurry of bona fide May snow. The temperature touched 38 at 7 a. m. and the weather bureau promised snow flurries and rain for tonight and a probable frost for the morrow.

Strike of Barbers On in Steubenville

STEUBENVILLE, O., May 2.—Journeymen barbers were called out of 35 shops in the Steubenville district yesterday by union officials when master barbers failed to sign the new scale. Seventy-eight barbers are out. The new scale raises the price of shaves from 25 to 35 cents and neck trims for women from 25 to 50 cents. Earlier closing hours are also provided.

Master barbers rejected the scale because the price of haircuts was not raised from 50 to 65 cents.

and a tract at the north end of the Ninth Street Bridge.

SCHENLEY SITE OUT

"These five sites were given to Mr. Dickey from which to make a selection. It later developed that the Schenley Park site could not be used for a Town Hall under the Schenley land grant to the city, thus reducing the list to four.

"In my judgment, Mr. Dickey is not the last word on the site question. His advice probably would be valuable as to dimensions and design of the building, but I don't see how he could come here and offer intelligent advice on a matter of such intimate concern to the people of this city as to where the hall should be built.

OBJECTS TO GROUP

"Why confine selection of the Town Hall site to a small group and the same group that recommended the airport location?

"This Chamber of Commerce group is entitled to the same consideration as anybody else and perhaps a front seat at deliberations, but no more."

Final choice of a site is up to the three county commissioners. Most controverted questions are decided by a two-to-one vote against McGovern, E. V. Babcock and Joseph G. Armstrong being the majority commissioners.

Dickey, at present manager of the Atlantic City auditorium, formerly was manager of the Cleveland public auditorium.

How I Got Rid of ECZEMA In 48 Hours

"I suffered intensely from eczema for 25 years. My legs from the knees down set me afire—the more I rubbed them the worse they itched. I tried several remedies, but nothing relieved me. At last in despair I tried Noxzema on the recommendation of a friend from Baltimore. Positively, I hadn't applied this wonderful cream more than five minutes before the itching and smarting stopped completely. And in less than 48 hours every sore, red blotch vanished."

This is typical of the many enthusiastic letters that pour in daily to praise this amazing new greaseless soothing and healing cream, Noxzema. Introduced just a short while ago, over 870,000 jars were sold in and around Baltimore last year.

Try Noxzema yourself—then you'll realize why over a million men and women are giving up cold creams, ointments and salves for its exclusive use. Get a full size jar of Noxzema at any druggist.

Oily Skin Physic

New skin physic quickly corrects oily skin, refines coarse pores, makes old-looking, poor-color skin youthfully clear, heals eruptions and dissolves blackheads

Physicing the skin corrects oily skin almost instantly

Oily skin, poor-color skin and blemishes are due to acid-skin impurities. And, everybody knows there is nothing like magnesia to neutralize acid. So, when the face is massaged with cremed magnesia the skin throws off even the most deep-set pore impurities. It physics the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. That's why magnesia is called the beauty miracle of modern science.

Physicing the skin rejuvenates the complexion so quickly that any face looks years younger in five minutes. It changes old-looking, poor-color skin to youthful clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. It's astringent; it reduces enlarged pores to the finest texture and smoothes out the tell-tale lines of age almost as if by magic.

It removes make-up better than soap or cleansing cream. And, because it's so mild, it's a blessing for fine, sensitive skin that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. That's why mothers use it to bathe infants. No wonder thousands of doctors urge their wives, patients and nurses to use nothing but magnesia to cleanse their faces.

Thousands of delighted women send letters of praise and say they did not at first believe anything so simple could be so wonderful. But, they were convinced when they saw so many friends suddenly get lovely complexions.

To get genuine cremed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. When you use it you will at once see why druggists find it hard to get enough to supply the tremendous demand.

No More Ugly Nose Pores

CAUTION: Modern skin specialists say never use soap on your face if your skin is oily. All soap contains caustic, which paralyzes the little oil glands of the skin, keeping them constantly opened. That's why oily skin always gets more greasy-looking after soap. Oily skins should be cleansed only with Facial Magnesia, which corrects oily skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach.

PITTSBURGH LADY ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT KONJOLA

Famous Medicine Quickly Relieved Stomach Trouble and Rheumatism.

"In Konjola I found the first and only relief from a complication of ailments." This expression sums up the many reasons why Konjola, the new and different medicine, is creating such a furore in Pittsburgh and wherever it is introduced.

MRS. JOHN MANNIS

Daily men and women are calling on the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, and telling him of the amazing benefits they derived through the use of this modern medicine. From the Konjola Man you will hear no promises or claims—he does not have to make them, as Konjola stands on a rock-bottom foundation of successes, even over cases of the most stubborn and chronic nature. Konjola is known for its works. This master medicine is supreme in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles or of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Its fame rests on actual experiences of those who put this marvelous medicine to the test, as did Mrs. John Mannis, 858 Monterio street, Pittsburgh. Jubilant over her escape from chronic illness, Mrs. Mannis said to the Konjola Man just a few days ago:

"I did not believe—can hardly believe it now—that one medicine could accomplish such wonders that Konjola has for me. This medicine certainly proved itself the master of them all, for it conquered when all others failed utterly. For some time I had been suffering from a chronic case of stomach trouble and rheumatism. The pains from the latter disease kept me awake at night and consequently I was tired and worn-out during the day. My hands were becoming disfigured because of the extreme swelling. Foods always fermented in my stomach and caused gas bloating. There was a constant bad taste in my mouth that nothing could relieve. Since nothing helped me I soon came to the conclusion that my case was hopeless.

"So when Konjola was recommended I was inclined to scoff at the idea of a single medicine benefiting me. But my friends insisted that I give it a trial and finally I decided to do so, although without any faith. Imagine the surprise and pleasure that were in store for me when I noticed an improvement in the very first bottle. From then on I rapidly improved and it was not long before my digestion had been restored and my appetite increased. Then the rheumatic pains were eliminated. Today I am well and happy, enjoying life to the fullest extent. To Konjola goes all the credit and I recommend this medicine with all my heart and soul."

The experience of Mrs. Mannis is not a rare one by any means; there are countless thousands of cases, far more grave than hers, that have yielded to this medicine of medicines.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

Gang Leader Visits Beebe And Asks Her Where Bobby Is Hiding

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Bobby Doyle, framed by the Wilkes gang and sentenced to prison for twenty years for killing a policeman, is aided to escape from jail by his fiancee, Beebe Barrett, with whom Bobby's sister, Mary, lives. Beebe is assisted by Johnny the Hop, a dope fiend. Inspector Wilmot and Biff Myers, assigned to the case, are visited by Dapper Don Wilkes, leader of the gang, who offers to donate $5,000 to the family of the murdered policeman if they will fail to capture Bobby. Meanwhile Bobby has reached Beebe's apartment in safety, but just as he is about to make his getaway disguised as the mother of Martha, the chambermaid, Biff Myers appears. Bobby hides in the sofa while Biff unsuccessfully cross-questions the conspirators. He leaves the apartment, but takes up a post of watchfulness outside the house. Martha and Bobby, in disguise, elude the detective and reach Johnny's apartment, where the dope fiend hides Bobby in a tiny secret room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

THE building in which Dapper Don Wilkes lived was on upper Riverside Drive. The racketeer occupied an apartment on the second floor of a tall, recently built structure.

He had filled his place with overstuffed furniture, but gaudy as was the color scheme, it had a good deal of sound bachelor comfort to recommend it.

He had a Jap servant and a well filled cellarette. Here he entertained occasionally, but none of his mob ever bothered him in his retreat. When Don wanted to see them, he went to one of the hangouts, a speakeasy or a night club, where he knew they were to be found.

On the morning following Bobby's return, and his successful flight to Johnny the Hop's hiding place, Don Wilkes was dressing himself with unusual care.

There were dozens of bright ties strung over the rack in his bedroom. But he could not find one that satisfied him. His white face looked a little fresher from its recent shave. He was whistling to himself. He felt in high spirits.

The phone rang. His was a private number that he gave out to only a few. He did not wait for the Jap to call him, but left the bedroom to answer it himself.

His mood changed abruptly as he listened. "What does she want?" he snapped. "I told you I didn't want any of the mob sending their women where I lived." He heard the buzzer in the hallway, and swung towards it with the receiver still against his ear. "Well, she's here now," he ended angrily. "All right then."

He hung up, and saw the woman coming down the corridor. She was vividly painted, almost vividly dressed. But there were lines about her mouth that drooped, and a haggard look under her eyes.

"What do you want, Bess?" the racketeer demanded.

"I gotta see you."

"Yeh?"

"Listen. Mike's worse. He's getting worse every minute, and there ain't a cent in the house."

"So that's it?" Wilkes said irritably. "I paid Mike his bit out of the last job. Think I'm going to give him coin every time he yells for it?"

The woman scarcely changed her expression. She was not likely to be intimidated, he saw. He altered his tone abruptly.

"What's the trouble?"

"You know what the trouble is. That bullet has been in his leg five weeks. He ain't had the care you'd give a sick dog, all because you won't let him go to a regular doctor."

"Go to a regular doctor with a gunshot wound?" Wilkes said. "That would be a swell idea, wouldn't it?"

"But the doctor you sent don't know what he's doing, and Mike's off his head with fever."

She stood her ground with a look of determination. Don Wilkes reached into his pocket and pulled out a roll of bills.

"Here's $200 for you," he said. "See how long you can make that last. And lay off that regular doctor talk. I'll get him one, but not for a couple of days."

She took the money. He noticed that she did not thank him for it. But Mike was a valuable man. He couldn't afford to lose him.

Bess seemed satisfied with his promise. When she was gone, Don Wilkes was about to return to his half-finished toilet, when a sudden sound, coming in through the opened windows, halted him. He went into the bedroom and looked out upon the side street.

An Italian organ grinder was making a melancholy hash of last season's popular tunes. A monkey with a strange little withered face jumped with familiar agility to the ledge of Don's apartment. Between his fingers he held not a tin cup, but a folded note. Don took it from the tiny paw and signaled to the musician quickly, who gave no sign that he had seen—but presently wandered away.

It was between 11 and 12 when the racketeer finally stepped out of his apartment and hailed a cab. The address he gave was Beebe Barrett's.

When he arrived there, he found both girls in, though Mary was on her way out to shop. Looking at them with eyes that never missed a trick, it seemed to him they looked happier and fresher than he had seen them before. Even Mary had gained a certain confidence, talked and laughed all too easily.

And in Beebe's face there was an unmistakable radiance. Don Wilkes chewed his lower lip thoughtfully, but his eyes and voice did not betray him.

He waited until Mary was gone. His manner with Beebe was gentle and sympathetic as if he were talking to a child. She was obviously glad to see him, though he took care not to meet her gaze for fear his own would linger too long and too significantly.

"No news yet?" he asked casually when they were alone.

Beebe hesitated. He noticed that, too, though she answered clearly and frankly: "None."

"It's funny to me," he murmured, pressing out his cigaret.

"What is it?"

"The whole thing. Bobby breaks out of the coop, and no one knows who pulled it. Next he disappears, vanishes for three days, and we don't know what's happened to him. The cops don't know either, fortunately—I talked to 'em last night."

"Last night?" Beebe exclaimed.

"Yes. I made a proposition to Inspector Wilmot to lay off hunting for Bobby, and I'd square that dead cop's family."

"What did he say?" she asked eagerly.

"Just laughed at me, of course. And Biff Myers, too."

"Myers was here last night," she said.

Don looked at her sharply. "What time?"

"About 10."

"Right after I got through with him!" he said. "See the idea. He thought because I made that proposition, I knew where Bobby was." He rose lazily to his feet. "Well, Beebe, I'm not going to bother you. Just dropped in for this word."

He sauntered toward the door, though he had no intention of leaving. His mind was working swiftly.

He turned. "Need any more money, Beebe? You know Bobby still has a credit of two or three hundred dollars with me."

Beebe met his eyes now. "Don, tell me the truth. You've been awfully sweet to us, right from the start. But is that really Bobby's money, or have you been doing it yourself out of your own pocket?"

He laughed. "Why, you silly kid, of course it's his. Not that it would make any difference because you could have anything I own. You know that, don't you?" he ended in a lower voice.

She was touched, as he wanted her to be. "Don," she said abruptly. "I—I just can't lie to you any longer. Bobby was here last night."

"You mean—he's safe—he's all right?" he cried. "Why, that's great news, Beebe—where is he now?"

"I—I don't know exactly," she faltered, recalling her promise to Johnny.

Don Wilkes gave a half reproachful look. "You mean you don't trust me, Beebe? That hurts."

"Don, of course I trust you. Only—only I promised I wouldn't."

"Who made you promise?"

"I'd rather not tell you."

The door had opened behind his back. He stepped aside quickly and whirled. Johnny the Hop had come in without knocking.

The racketeer glanced from the face of the addict to Beebe and back again.

A sudden passion broke out in his voice. "You don't need to tell me," he snapped. "I know. This rat here."

At the look in his face, Johnny cowered back against the doorway.

Mistaken Identity

By Marie Helene Gatter

Daily Short Story

BOB GATES sat dejectedly at a restaurant table. Like most small-town boys in a large city, he was longing for home. The busy city life went on all about him, but he seemed apart from it. No one had taken the trouble to be kind, and despite the millions of people in the city he had no intimate friends. Of course, there were the fellows in the office, but they had their own problems and took no interest in him. It was a lonely situation for one, who, at home, had been one of the town's most popular young men.

He glanced about him at his fellow diners. They were all eating with that curious faculty of speed that every one used in the city. Perhaps there was really no need for it, but still everything seemed to have to be done as quickly as possible.

Absorbed in his moody reflections, he was unaware of the approach of a slim young girl. She stared at him musingly for a moment and then walked up to him. He was startled by the touch of a light hand upon his shoulder and stared up into a pair of smiling blue eyes, framed in a piquant young face.

"Why Jerry Winsor, what on earth are you doing here?" a delightful voice exclaimed. He tried to stammer a reply, but his tongue seemed stuck. He hated to do it, but he must correct her. The lovely vision sank into a seat beside him, however, before he found his voice.

With an effort, he stammered, "Pardon me, but I'm afraid you've made a mistake. My name is Bob Gates."

"Why, how stupid of me," she murmured confusedly, "but you really do resemble him closely. He was an old school friend of mine and I was so overjoyed at seeing someone I know in this lonely city, that I spoke without looking very hard."

"You say you are lonely?" he snatched at her words eagerly. "Yes," she answered, "you see I come from a small town and the busy life of the city has not proved very friendly to me." After his discovery of her small town origin, the time passed rapidly in memories of their previous lives. When they had finished their meal, he received her permission to take her home. She lived in an uptown street in one of the old brownstone mansions that once housed most of New York's Four Hundred, but are now given over mostly to rooming houses and apartments.

After their first meeting, their friendship progressed smoothly. They had the same tastes in music, literature and the fine arts, besides common thoughts on the ordinary matters of every-day life. They attended shows and concerts together and in a few months, they had visited together all that the mighty city had to offer. Their thoughts then began to turn to spring and home.

On a wonderful June morning, when all Nature seemed to be at work to beautify the tired old earth, he called her up and asked her if she would like to spend the day in the country with him. She gladly accepted his offer and they were soon on their way.

After driving for three hours, they found themselves in a veritable paradise. They left the car and strolled along a worn path, enjoying to the full, the gorgeous beauties of spring. With the passing months, their friendship had ripened into love and in that earthly paradise, he asked her to marry him. Tremblingly, she nodded her head, for she was afraid to trust her voice. After they had sealed their pact with many kisses, they turned to go back.

As they walked along, he remembered the occasion of their first meeting and felt a feeling of gratitude for the fellow, whose resemblance to him had brought them together. "Dearest, don't forget to send that Winsor chap an invitation to our wedding," he said, turning to her, "you know he is in a way responsible for our happiness."

He glanced at her curiously as she suddenly came close to him. "There never was any such person as Jerry Winner," she gasped from the depths of his coat. "Never was any—!" he exclaimed. "No, dear," was the surprising answer, "you see, I was very lonesome and every day you sat at the table next to me, but seemed too absorbed in your thoughts to notice me. You looked so lonesome, I longed to speak to you, but well-bred girls are just not supposed to do that sort of thing. One day I suddenly had the illuminating thought of pretending to mistake you for someone else and thus get acquainted with you."

"Well, I'll be—!" he roared. "You aren't mad at me," she said fearfully. "Mad at you—! You little devil, I adore you," he shouted, and, as he bent to gather her in his arms, he murmured, "Well, Jerry Winsor has served his purpose, anyway."

WHICH DENTIFRICE SHALL YOU USE?

ONE product on the market answers to all the qualifications of a good dentifrice—Squibb's Dental Cream. It is made with more than 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia. MAXWELL HOUSE COFFEE

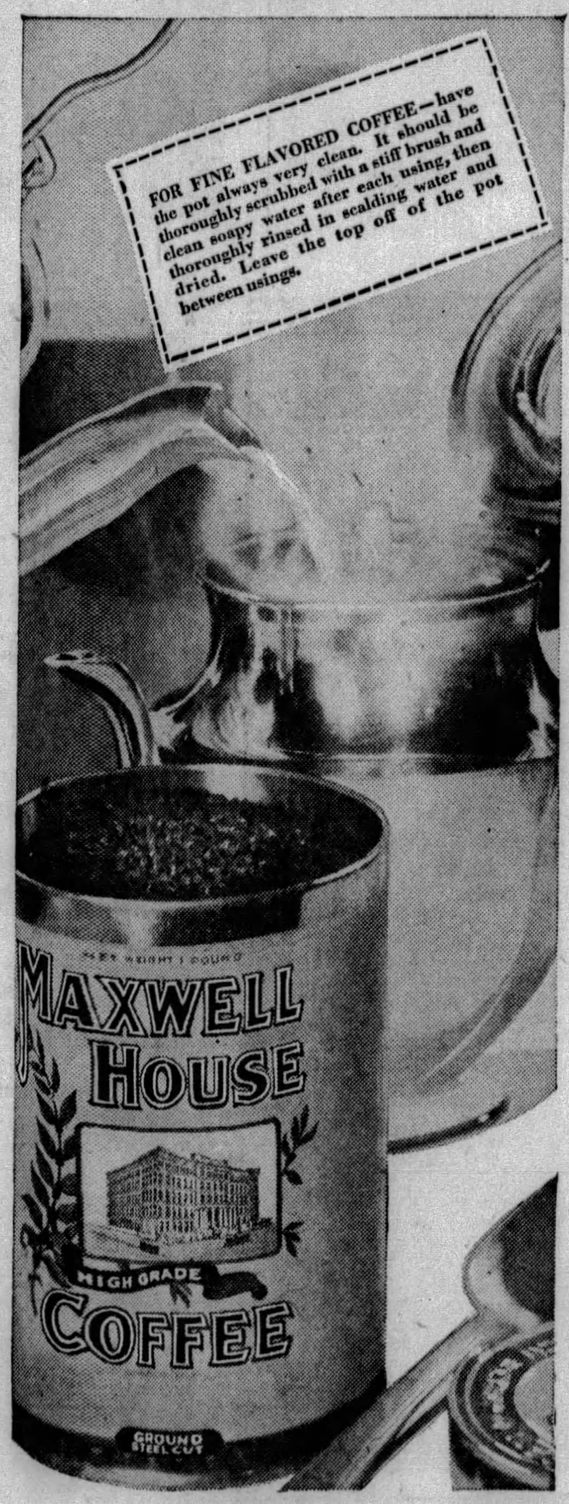
First to please THE CRITICAL throughout the United States



ALL over the United States tonight millions of men and women will finish dinner with keen relish for the same brand of coffee.

In the morning they will go out cheered by the satisfaction they derived from their breakfast cup of this good coffee. And at noon, wherever they are, they may refresh themselves again with its sparklingly deep, rich, mellow flavor.

For Maxwell House is the first coffee ever to win a national popularity. It is pleasing more people today than any other coffee ever offered for sale.

Years ago, down in Dixie, a man dreamed of better coffee flavor. Through years of patient experimenting, testing, combining and re-combining the finest coffees grown, he achieved at last a flavor which delighted even his critical palate.

With samples in his saddle-bags he rode through the countryside carrying the news of his accomplishment. One of the first to recognize its value was the famous old Maxwell House in Nashville—renowned throughout the South for its marvelous food and hospitality, the brilliance of its balls and banquets, the illustrious guests it entertained.

From this beginning—within the lifetime of its creator—the demand for Maxwell House Coffee has spread from coast to coast of the United States. It has become the fine coffee chosen by prominent hostesses, served daily in America's foremost homes.

Your grocer has Maxwell House Coffee, nicely sealed in tin to protect its matchless fragrance and flavor.

FAVORITE MOVIE STARS TO BROADCAST TONIGHT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

WE HOPE "Whoopee" McGurk has a radio set wherever he is tonight. Knowing, as we do, that "Whoopee" is a great admirer of the silver screen, we should hate to have him miss Fannie Brice, Ronald Colman, D. W. Griffith, Gloria Swanson and Mary Pickford when they broadcast direct from the stage of the Apollo Theater in New York city. The occasion is the premiere of Ronald Colman's talkie, "Bulldog Drummond." KDKA is the local outlet at 8 o'clock.

Fannie Brice

Another famous movie man, William Fox, will speak to the radio audience over WCAE at 10 o'clock during the Halsey-Stuart program.

Two new dance bands make their bow to radio audiences tonight. They are Benny Krueger's Orchestra, WJAS at 7:32 o'clock, and George Olsen's Music, feature of the 10:30 o'clock program from WJAS.

Phil Cook and Vic Fleming start out in small time vaudeville tonight by being fired from their first theater. We think this series of "Buck and Wing" programs from WCAE at 8 will be highly entertaining.

IMPORTANT SPEECHES

"La Paloma" will be sung by Genia Zielinska, soprano, during the Concert Bureau program, WCAE at 10:30.

"American Imperialism" is the subject of Senator Allen's address at the annual dinner of the United States Chamber of Commerce at 10 p. m. which will be broadcast in Pittsburgh by WJAS.

Of importance, too, is the last-minute arrangement by the Columbia System to broadcast at 8:30 p. m. the dinner to Commander Ellsberg, who superintended the raising of the submarine S-51. This broadcast will come from the banquet hall of the S. S. Leviathan.

BROADCAST TO BALLOONISTS

Stations of the National Broadcasting Company will broadcast weather reports to balloonists when they take off from Pitt Stadium Saturday, it was announced today.

SOUTHERN MELODRAMA.
The story of "Neath Southern Skies," a Southern melodrama, concerns a brutal Southern colonel who ill-treats all within his plantation and who has broken the spirit of his wife. The owner of the adjoining plantation has always been in love with her, and the climax is reached when he interferes in her behalf, and prevents the Colonel beating Old Tom, a faithful darky to death. Shooting and tragedy take place, but the conclusion is a satisfactory one.
A minstrel quartet will give darky songs and will be accompanied by the strumming of many banjos.

The broadcasting will be done direct from the stage at the theater. Among those expected to broadcast are Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Gloria Swanson, D. W. Griffith and others. These artists, it is expected, will speak at minute intervals, sending brief greetings to the screen fans of the land. The occasion will also be the first on which leading motion picture stars have been heard over the air at a big motion picture "premier."

COULD HARDLY GET HER BREATH

Pittsburgh Lady Surprised Way Ten Herbs Ended Her Health Troubles.

A remarkable number of local men and women have declared that the celebrated new natural medicine, Ten Herbs, gave them relief from long suffering. Some say that the action of this compound on the whole inner system is really amazing. Every person suffering from stomach, liver, kidney or bowel disorder, rheumatism, neuritis, nervousness, or a general weak, run-down condition, should learn more about Ten Herbs by calling at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, where this tremendously successful preparation is being introduced.

"I was greatly surprised at the way Ten Herbs helped me—it was just the medicine I needed," was the statement of Mrs. Mary Mullaney, 1200 Beaver Street, N. S., Pittsburgh. "Before taking your medicine, I was troubled a great deal with indigestion after eating. I was sure to have heartburn, and my stomach would fill with gas, which would bloat me. Often the gas was so bad that it would press up against my heart so that I could hardly breathe. I had to keep taking some kind of laxative because of constipation.

"Having read in the papers about Ten Herbs and what it had done for some of my neighbors, I bought a bottle. It gave me great relief, and I continued taking your medicine until now I am feeling fine. Indigestion and constipation have been entirely relieved. I have no more gas or heartburn. I gladly recommend Ten Herbs to anyone who is troubled like I was."

Ten Herbs is a splendid spring tonic for every member of the family. It is a scientific compound of ten wonderful herbal ingredients, each of which has a highly beneficial action on one or more organs of the body, and they thoroughly cleanse and tone up the whole human system.

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, and is sold at all May's Drug Stores.

BUGS BAER Says

NOW YOU TELL ONE

THE frost is off the garage and the rivers and ponds are boiling gently with piscartorial life.

"Bugs" Baer

The trout fisherman has vulcanized his sea-going boots and is again packing his lunch into a bottle.

Spring is here and those two happiness boys, Baron Munchhausen and Duke Ananias, are telling about the one that got away but forgot to leave its name and address.

Bill Williams, of Kentucky, breaks the shell on the egg of argument. Bill says he was fishing in the Cumberland River and caught a two-pound carp on a trout line.

If this is true then the carp forgot to read the catalogues.

He strung the fish on a line and tied the line to the bank. Bill then went home, hoping the carp would get away so that he could lie about it.

Next morning Bill discovered that the carp had been swallowed by a 12-pound salmon. He must have been using powerful bait when one fish will swallow another just to get it.

We will believe Bill but we warn him that he will probably be blacklisted by the D. A. R.

The worst part about Bill's scenario is that he has started the annual beauty contest among fishermen.

Taffy Revell, of West Virginia, bobs up with the info that he was angling in Lake Erie using a small Democrat as bait. He caught a banjo-mouthed mookie which is so rare that it ain't even a fish.

Taffy says he got very good casting results using a scarlet coachman on a six-ounce line, but thinks he can do better with one of Roxy's ushers and the Atlantic cable.

The Elk City Flash says he was fishing off the Ohio when the levee broke and he knocked a 20-pound catfish off a neighbor's fence.

We do not doubt that Bill Williams caught a 12-pound salmon in the Cumberland River. We do not even doubt that Bill could stuff a bale of hay into his vest pocket.

Clyde Milan, the old Washington outfielder, used to tell us about fishing in Kentucky. Clyde had a bird dog that flushed a crow one day and Clyde followed the dog to the river edge. There the bird dog was pointing a 16-pound pickerel and Clyde was so mad he knocked the dog over with his musket.

But the dog kept pointing the pickerel and finally Clyde shot the pickerel because its eyes reminded him of an umpire.

When Clyde got the pickerel home he discovered the crow was inside and that the bird dog was correct in its hasty diagnosis.

That was Clyde's story and he stuck to it so long that now he is stuck with it.

If Bill Williams wants to top that he had better tie the salmon to the bank and use three-in-one oil on his imagination.

FRISBY HAS NEW PROSPERITY BILL

Sir—

Please advise all my constituents that I intend to introduce, in Congress, the "Frisby Bill" which provides that each and every citizen will be brought into court and fined $10 at the end of each calendar year, provided—

" he has not been arrested, convicted and fined for any felony or misdemeanor during the twelve-month ."

The intent of my bill is to secure revenue for the Government, in order to employ more police, build more jails. There will be no mistake in fining every citizen, because, with all the laws we have now, it is impossible for him not to have broken one or more.

Please address all congratulatory letters (enclosing ten cents in stamps) to—

Help of Charter Friends Is Needed to Adopt It

Although the date for the special election on the Metropolitan charter—June 25—is nearly two months distant, it is not too early to begin preparations to "put the charter over." It is evident that there must be co-operation and an alliance of interests if necessary work is to be done effectively.

Preceding the adoption of the amendment permitting the submitting of the charter to the voters for adoption, there was an active campaign by the Metropolitan Plan Commission. The Republican organization supported the commission. A similar arrangement in the coming campaign would make for confidence of the public, which has strong faith in the Metro Commission.

An intelligent and vigorous campaign will be necessary. Much missionary work must be done. A mere majority throughout the county will not adopt the charter, which must receive a two-thirds vote in not less than 62 political divisions of the county. Even though it carried every city, borough and township in the county the charter could not win unless there were a two to one majority in 51 per cent of the total of municipalities and townships.

Although the charter amendment received an overwhelming vote in Allegheny last November, the same vote would not give us the charter. So, it will be seen that every person in favor of the charter must be a missionary in this important matter.

'Baumes' Law Is Signed; Life for Some Offenders

Pennsylvania now has a modified "Baumes" law, Gov. Fisher having signed the Salus bill, which gives authority to judges to impose life sentences, at their discretion, on offenders convicted for a fourth time on a felony charge. In addition, courts also are given power to give second offenders a sentence twice as long as that meted for the first crime committed.

Felonies which may bring life sentences are treason, murder, voluntary manslaughter, burglary, entering with intent to steal, robbery, arson, mayhem, kidnaping, sale of narcotics, perjury, oral felonies and crimes committed with the aid of a deadly weapon or explosives. It also is provided that the fourth offense must have been committed within five years of the time of the third felony, time spent in prison by the accused not to count in computing the period.

Although the Salus act is less severe than the original Baumes law of New York state, it should prove a strong deterrent to crime in Pennsylvania. It provides means of dealing effectively with confirmed criminals and really puts teeth in the law. Under it, persistent evil-doers may be put where they cannot continue to break the laws of society.

The Pennsylvania law may have better effect than the New York law, which, as originally enacted, made life sentences mandatory. This provision resulted in the criticism that it left no discretion in dealing with individual cases. This defect is avoided in the Salus act, which gives the courts ample power to impose the life sentence in cases where it should be applied or to impose a less severe punishment should that appear the more advisable.

Criminality receives a staggering jolt in the signing of the Salus act, the effectiveness of which, of course, can only be determined by experience. Perhaps it may be made stiffer after a trial. That was done in New York after the Baumes law had been in operation for a year.

Sugar Lobby Works for Cuban Sugar Planters

"A betrayal of trust by the United States toward a dependent people."

Secretary Stimson says that is the way in which any limitation upon the amount of sugar that can come into this country from the Philippines will inevitably be interpreted the world around.

Secretary Stimson ought to know. He was Secretary of War in President Taft's cabinet. He was Governor General of the Philippines under the Coolidge administration. And now he is President Hoover's Secretary of State.

As a witness the other day before the Republican members of the House Committee on Ways and Means, Secretary Stimson did not mince words in denouncing the proposed restriction on Philippine sugar and exposing the special interests that are supporting this scheme.

"It comes directly," said Secretary Stimson, "from those interests which have invested in Cuban sugar."

It is American investors in Cuban sugar that are flooding the country with propaganda in favor of limiting sugar imports from the Philippines solely in order that these investors may sell more Cuban sugar in the United States.

Secretary Stimson showed the committee that free entry of Philippine sugar to this country "does not and cannot affect the price of sugar in the American market."

Three-fifths of the sugar consumed in this country comes from foreign sources and nearly all of that amount is Cuban sugar. One-fifth comes from continental United States and the other one-fifth from its insular possessions—Porto Rico; the Hawaiian Islands and the Philippines.

That is why the only effect of shutting out all Philippine sugar would only be to increase the amount of foreign sugar consumed in this country.

In other words what the sugar lobby is trying to stampede Congress into doing is "to sacrifice Philippine sugar for Cuban sugar."

Of course there is nothing new about the operations of the Sugar lobby. It has long been engaged in deceiving both Congress and the country. And its deceptions are doing a great deal to discredit the United States throughout the world.

Not only should both Houses be quick to repudiate this threatened injustice to the Philippines but Congress might well go much further and investigate the sugar lobby sponsoring this discreditable proposal.

Tales That Are Told

Chilly

MR. SMITH-FARMAN acquired money by the death of a relative, and his wife became anxious to get into society. Her knowledge of social customs left much to be desired.

Their nearest neighbors were a very exclusive family. Mrs. Smith-Farman, desiring their acquaintance, sent a card as follows:—

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith-Farman present their compliments to Mr. and Mrs. Hartt, and hope they are well. Mr. and Mrs. Smith-Farman will be at home on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock."

The family receiving it were equal to the occasion, and Mrs. Smith-Farman received the following reply:—

Mr. and Mrs. Hartt return the compliments of Mr. and Mrs. Smith-Farman, and inform them that they are very well. Mr. and Mrs. Hartt are glad to know that Mr. and Mrs. Smith-Farman will be at home on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Hartt will also be at home."

There Was Once a Barber

DID you ever get up in a terrible hurry in the morning, rush out without breakfast or even a shave, and then find the clock was fast, and you had a quarter of an hour to wait for your train? No? Well, Johnson did one morning.

Instead of grumbling, however, he turned into a barber's shop.

"Shave, please!" he cried, "and hurry."

"Nice day for the big race, sir," began the barber leisurely, but Johnson cut him short.

"Get a jerk into it, man!" he said, "I've got to catch the 9:15."

But the barber wasn't to be rattled. He went on slowly lathering, till Johnson's self-control left him.

"Hold that brush still, man!" he yelled.

The barber looked at him perplexedly.

"Hold it still!" he repeated, "and I'll waggle my head!"

An Also Ran

THERE had been an accident on the line and a number of race horses traveling in the train were killed, among them being Sampan, a well-bred colt, but a failure so far as racing was concerned.

The owner, who was also on the train, wished to identify his horse, and, together with his trainer, set about the task.

"That ain't him," remarked the trainer on seeing the first body.

"Nor that," said the owner, pointing to another.

They wandered on and espied a third.

"Not him," the trainer shook his head. "But there he is. That's old Sampan. Same in death as in life, not even in the first three!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THE little graveyard is very still in the twilight.

It is a long time since anyone was buried there and many of the tombstones have fallen down. Moss has grown in the chiselled words and there is a litter of weeds along the graveled paths.

The sun falls in pale, slanting rays through the old cypress trees. The shadows widen in warm pools in the deep grass. A bird chirps sleepily and then is still.

It is restful in the little graveyard.

People wept there, once—wept as their lives were torn apart. But there are no tears now. Only the quietness of a task that is done.

Near the little graveyard there is a schoolhouse.

It is deserted, too, for it is vacation time.

I peered in through the dusty windows yesterday and smiled as memories came back to me.

The nicked, carved desks—

The battered boards where so many lessons were chalked up wrong by fumbling young hands—

The litter of paper along the worn aisles—

Papers that seemed so important at the time but now are rubbish.

What a tumult of warm, wiggling life there was in that schoolroom a little while ago.

What dreams were dreamed, what great rebellions brewed, what tears were wept—

Wept because dreams went wrong, rebellions failed and lessons were so cruelly hard to learn.

But now it is all still. There is no trouble in the schoolroom now. The desks are empty, for the children do not need them any more. They are out playing somewhere in the sun.

The deserted schoolroom and the little graveyard are strangely alike in the twilight. Both so quiet, so peaceful, now that the lessons are over.

I wonder if the Tall Ghosts sometimes stop beside the sagging wall and smile in memory—

As one smiles at a once loved place where one was small and weak—

And talk together of the sums they chalked up wrong—

And how they wept because the lessons were so hard to learn—and dreamed and fought and played at children's games—

Or speak of those discarded desks that bore their names but now lie crumbling beneath the grass—remembering all the restless days they passed in them, before they grew too big to stay there any more.

I wonder if the Tall Ghosts, passing, sometimes pause and think—

And thinking, smile—

And then drift gently on—

To their adventure, somewhere in the sun.

COUPLED SUNS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"What method is used to determine binary stars?"—Arthur Bennett, Detroit.

TO determine whether a star is binary or not there is no method except observation. A binary star is a double star whose component members are found, by watching with the telescope, to be in revolution around their common center. Ordinarily one of the stars is much brighter, and more massive than the other, so that the revolution appears to be performed by the smaller star around the larger one, as the moon revolves around the earth, while the earth seems to ordinary observation to stand still. But, as the earth really revolves also, in step with the moon, around the center of gravity between them (which is situated about 3,000 miles from the earth's center in the direction of the moon), so the larger component of a binary star also revolves around their common center of gravity, the two stars keeping at arms-length, so to speak, on either side of that center.

Here is a sketch of the "orbit" of the famous binary star "Gamma Virginis." In this the chief star is represented as stationary, as we represent the earth stationary in drawing the moon's orbit. A few dates are indicated around the ellipse, showing where the smaller star was observed at corresponding times. The first measurement was made by Sir William Herschel in 1780, but it was not then ascertained that there was a movement of revolution. The entire revolution is now estimated at about 185 years. Of course, many other observations of the position of the small star have been made between those indicated in the sketch.

In 1836 the small star appears to have been in periastron, i. e., at the point of nearest approach to the large one, and at that time the light of the two was blended together, so that no telescope then in existence was powerful enough to separate them. At present you can see the two with an ordinary telescope.

The method used for Gamma Virginis is the same as that used for all observations of binary stars. But it only serves to determine whether they are in motion with respect to one another, and whether that motion in such as to show the existence of a closed orbit. It tells nothing about the actual size of the stars, or about their real distance apart, or the length of the orbit. It does, however, show the length of time occupied in the revolution.

By other methods the parallax, or distance, of the stars, is ascertained, and when that is known, together with the observed angular size of the orbit and the period of revolution, the masses, or weights, of the stars and the actual speed at which the orbital revolution is performed, can be calculated. This is done by comparison with the movements of the planets around the sun, through the application of Kepler's law of planetary motion, which tells us that the square of the time of revolution is proportional to the cube of the mean distance.

There are binary stars whose components revolve so close around one another that no telescope has yet been able to show them separately, but evidence of their motion can be obtained by spectroscopic observation of the shifting lines in their light, and thus their velocity, their masses, their distance apart, and the form and size of their orbits can be calculated. Some of the binaries of this class consist of two tremendous suns revolving around their center of gravity, almost in contact with one another, and with such speed that only three or four days are required for a single revolution. One is known which actually requires only eight hours! We ought to consider ourselves lucky that our sun has not one of these sidereal bulldogs choking him.

Bible Passages

God's Throne

(Revelation 4; 1-11)

AFTER this I looked, and behold, a door was opened in heaven: and the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which said, Come up hither, and I will show thee things which must be hereafter.

And immediately I was in the spirit: and, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat on the throne.

And he that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone: and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald.

And round about the throne were four and twenty seats: and upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment; and they had on their heads crowns of gold.

And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices: and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.

And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal: and in the midst of the throne and round the throne were four beasts full of eyes before and behind.

And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying eagle.

And the four beasts had each of them six wings about him; and they were full of eyes within: and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is to come.

And then those beasts give glory and honor and thanks to him that sat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever.

The four and twenty elders fall down before him that sat on the throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honor and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created.

The Rhyming Optimist

Spring Days

THESE are the days when life is kind.
A happy whisper runs along
In step with every dancing wind,
And all the woodland rings with song.

The wood nymphs and the fauns return
To frolic down the forest aisles,
Along the hills red poppies burn
And lift gay flags to April's smiles.

These are the days when life is sweet,
Forgotten, Winter's sad refrain,
While all the little winds repeat
The rhythmic laughter of the rain.

As blossoms deck each field, each bough,
And new life stirs in all earth's ways,
No doubt of any promise now
Can cast its shadow on the days.

Isn't It So?

A Hog-tied Night Mare

THE League of Nations—to which we don't belong—busy revising its "Hoyle on Warfare," hasn't quite decided to forbid the further use of poison gases.

But the future will at least rest easier because of its decision to outlaw plague as a military weapon.

The very contemplation of employing pestilence against enemy forces sends a shiver of revulsion through printers' ink.

Civilization would be bankrupt of humanity and deserve contempt if the Great Powers consented to diabolism so abysmal, that man might live from generation to generation, only on the arbitrary sufferance of his governments.

H. G. Wells and the Russians have painted some shuddering canvases for fiction; and history ashamedly recalls brutalities that challenged the existence of Deity. But neither fact nor fancy ever went so far as to enlist such Hessians as bubonic, typhoid, "flu" and scarlet fever to prostrate fellow-nations.

Arsenals already hold too many hellish instruments—science and chemistry aren't yet exonerated from their treasonable services to the last war.

The mere thought that research could consider drilling germ battalions and directing their assaults must evoke general nightmare.

Bayonets, machine guns and shells have a limited destructive capacity.

Phosgene and other lethal vapors strike within bounds and, even when released upon non-combatants, pervade only selected objectives.

Therefore, imagination cannot begin to estimate how widely, and over how many years, deliberately organized infection would spread—polluting air and vegetation—diseasing vermin and food animals—rotting into the very core of races— until the last continent became a charnel-house.

The maggoty brain that bred and nursed the dread project betrays a super-Sadist and a maniac.

The diplomats and strategists who seriously weighed its suggestions are mentally tainted and subjects for psychiatry.

Progress and invention were better halted, if Mars is to inherit every fell secret of their laboratory and become residuary legatee of all the immeasurable energies that wireless, electricity and test-tubes amass.

We dare not confide survival to the sweet persuasions of peace and the bland verities of logic, while potential foes lend ear to holocaust, and encourage their engineers and delvers to evolve ever vaster and subtler methods of intimidation and conquest.

Treaties have never bound revenge and ambition to a disadvantageous contract. Or restrained an opportunist from self or community aggrandizement.

Political covenants are notorious turncoats and inevitably obey the main chance wherever superior armament doesn't discourage a welsh.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 2.—In the Harlem Black Belt is a large sect claiming to be Negro-Jews and worshiping in a synagogue. There are about 2,000 who believe they are the original Israelites of the tribe of Judea and that white Jews are descendants of the 10 lost tribes.

The congregation is both orthodox and unorthodox. They keep the Saturday Sabbath, eat only kosher meat, observe the matzos diet on Passover, fast on Yom Kippur, but they do not deny Jesus. There are, however, two other congregations of the colored Jewish faith, who deny Jesus.

The more liberal body claim they are Abyssinians. Their bishop is a dapper saddle-colored man who delivers services in Palestinian Hebrew. His church is The Holy Church of the Living God, an old brown stone house jutting off a prominent corner on One Hundred and Thirty-first street.

On the wall is the Hebrew alphabet, and in the rear a stained glass window of the Christian cross and crown. Worshipers upon entering touch a small brass object on the door—the mezuza—and whisper "Shalom," which means "Peace." Old men wear long black coats and high hats.

The church music consists of a saxophone, guitar and tarbourine—to correspond with kynor, the tpin and the nevel of Hebraic origin. It starts off slowly in the manner of the tom-tom in the deep African jungles and increases in tempo until it becomes almost modern jazz.

Members of the congregation stand and sway to the rythm which they frequently punctuate with "Hallelujahs," but there is no camp meeting hysterio. In the strictly orthodox synagogues the preachers are known as rabbis and are said to be men of deep learning.

The sermons are really a mixture of Hebrew and English. A passage from the Hebrew will be followed by an explanation in English. In the prayers God's blessing is invoked for "the true children of Israel." Harlem says its Negro-Jews are almost invariably hard-working and excellent citizens.

On a Harlem curb is a blind and one-armed war veteran who appears at intervals to sing ballads in a marvelous tenor. His voice—like the sweet song of a robin impaled on a thorn—has that tender and sympathetic quality that renders a block inert and moists every eye.

Every large hotel has an odd character for a permanent guest. In one on Fifth avenue an orbicular old lady in rustling black silk makes a grand entry into the grill nightly at 11, drinks a rye highball from her own flask, eats a plate of ice cream and departs. At another northward is a gentleman with side-wheel whiskers and hair fluted up like a frozen sea wavelet, who wears correct dinner clothes save for a flaming red bow tie. He occupies eight rooms and his sole companion is a pet squirrel. Another eccentric and his wife dine en famille in their suite every night and have a two-piece orchestra play while the meal progresses. But the prize dodo is a bachelor in a Park avenue hotel, who, in his neurotic remoteness, dines every night in full dress all alone in his apartment.

"Your frequent references to art and architecture," writes Cedric G., "are quite amusing. How long have you been a collector?"

Such is the glory that comes to an outstanding collector of steamship circulars. Nobody ever hears of him and I'm off to some daisied meadow for a quiet sulk.

I am conscious of the architectural pre-eminency of St. Peter's in Rome, but it is a little too bewildering for me. My speed is the St. Louis Union Station.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

OFTEN you think that if you could have a talk with a successful man it would make you successful.

You attribute your failures to lack of opportunity.

Aren't you looking for something to blame for your lack of progress?

The chances are that if you should talk with a man who has won success and high position he would tell you something you already know.

That you have to work hard, study hard, give up all thought of self-comfort and ease and entertainment if you would get to the top.

You have mixed a lot of pleasure with your efforts.

You are unwilling to deny yourself a good time for weeks and weeks on end, and years, perhaps, in order to devote the required hours you need as preparation for a big place in the world of your chosen calling.

You cannot find a single big man who dismisses all thought of his work at a certain time each day, for he is subject to the needs of his business.

Success means much effort without any interfering influences.

That nothing shall interfere must be the controlling factor for success.

You can't get it by hearing some men tell about how they won it—unless you are willing to make the sacrifice they made and have the ability they possess.
